—During the stallion show at Paris, Ky., on Monday, Goldsmith's Abdallah was instantly killed while going around the track. He was met by his full brother, John Bright, and the shaft of his sulky entered his breast and came out near the top of the shoulder, causing death in a few minutes. His loss is greatly deplored, as he was considered one of the best horses in the United States. He was valued at thirty thousand dollars.

—The University of Mound College, San Francisco, was burned last Sunday night. It was a three story and basement frame building, containing about sixty students. The fire originated in the basement. It is supposed it was set by a late discharged Chinese employe. The building is a total loss. No lives were lost. One student was suffocated, but was rescued. The institution was under the control of the Presbyterian denomination as a preparatory school for the University of California.

FROM WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, April 5, 1875.

The Mexican Outrages.

The President to-day stated, in relation to the recent outrages by armed bands of Mexicans invading the Texas frontier, that he had not expressed his views to any person—not even to the Secretary of State, who, like himself, had been absent from the city. Orders had been issued to the military for the protection of our citizens on the frontier, but nothing else had been done. The Government was not yet fully advised of the extent of the outrages, although it had been officially informed of the arrest of a mail carrier and the burning of a postoffice by the invaders. The Mexican Government had repeatedly been reminded of the outrages heretofore committed by Mexicans upon citizens of the United States, both in Mexico and on United States soil, and would hear from this Government in a short time concerning those more recently committed through the Department of State. There would be a consultation with the Secretary of State on this subject, and probably it would be brought to the attention of the Cabinet. We must determine hereafter what is proper to be done in the premises. He could see no reason for the apprehension of war between the two countries, but of course no one could tell what might take place in the future. Nothing, however, would be done by this Government to provoke such a result.

Supreme Court Decision.

John M. Bailey, late Collector, &c., plaintiff in error, vs. the N. Y. Central and Hudson Railroad Co. in error to the Circuit Court of the United States for the Northern District of New York. Justice Clifford delivered the opinion, reversing the judgment of said Circuit Court, with costs, and remanding the cause, with directions, to a venire facias de novo. Justice Field dissented.

LICK'S REVOCATION.

A Synopsis of the Instrument.

The following is a complete synopsis of the revocation of the great trust deed of James Lick, mention of which has already been made in the GAZETTE:

Whereas, on the 16th of July, 1874, I, James Lick, did execute a certain deed of trust [reciting the great trust deed]; and, whereas, said instrument was made by me hastily, inconsiderately and under the effects of mental depression caused by failing health and apprehension of a speedy departure from this life, and I was thereby induced to neglect the making of suitable provisions for persons having natural claims upon me, and the life effects of said instrument are to postpone the realization of the objects of my benificence; and, whereas, several of the benificent purposes that I have long desired to accomplish are so imperfectly provided that such provisions, if not positively illegal, are at least of such doubtful legality that in the event (?) they should be a fruitful subject of litigation; and whereas, I am desirous of making further provision for those who have natural claims upon me, and at the same time of resettling the objects of my bounty, so as to avoid all questions of doubtful legality and of making such definite provisions as will enable the same to be accomplished within a short time; and whereas, my returning health will, I trust, enable me personally to carry out the objects of my bounty; now, therefore, I do hereby revoke and annul said instrument, and all the powers, &c., conferred by the same upon the said Trustees, as well as all the trusts, &c., hereby ratifying and confirming whatever the said Trustees may have heretofore legally done in virtue of said instrument.

Dated 27th March, 1875.

Witnessed by and acknowledged before Henry S. Tibbey.

It is understood that Mr. Lick, on recovering his health, found his property in the hands of Trustees who managed it without consulting his wishes or prejudices. Mr. Lick soon became jealous of the Trustees, requested the most active of them to resign, and attempted to govern the remainder. He was finally driven into a course of decided opposition to them, which has ended in this attempt of a revocation. In order to a complete understanding of the facts it is necessary to know, in the first place, that the original trust was conferred in two deeds made six weeks apart; and, secondly, that the legality of the deed of revocation is doubtful, and will be strenuously contested in the courts. The common opinion among the people, East and West, will be that Mr. Lick has been doubly unfortunate, first, in deeding his property away, and next, in trying to get it back.

SECOND EDITION

THE SCANDAL TRIAL.

The Brooklyn City Court Room More Crowded Than Ever.

The Plymouth Pastor Again on the Witness Stand.

A Number of Moulton's Statements Denied.

Tilton's Acceptance of Beecher's Apology.

Bowen's Course Denounced by the "Mutual Friend."

NEW YORK, April 5, 1875.

The beautiful weather this morning, and the fact that Monday is an idle day with many, and many more cannot work were they willing, because of the dullness of the season, together with the knowledge that Mr. Beecher would continue his testimony in the great scandal trial, combined to attract to the Brooklyn City Court room to-day perhaps the largest crowd yet gathered there since the case of Theodore Tilton against Henry Ward Beecher was brought to trial in the Court room. The spot whereon an auditor could find resting place was occupied. The women, too, were more numerous than on any previous day. After the Court room was thus full, outside a great crowd remained, many having tickets of admission which were for the time useless. Judge Neilson was prompt in his attendance, and beside him on the bench were David Dudley Field and Judge Reynolds.

Beecher's Testimony.

As soon as the Clerk had made the usual proclamation of the opening of the Court, Judge Neilson admonished the audience against any outbreak of applause, and while so doing, Mr. Beecher resumed his place on the witness stand.

Witness was handed a paper, and he said that at the interview with Moulton in his (Beecher's) study, when this paper was drawn up, I believed Moulton's story of Tilton's innocence was true, and I was glad to believe it.

The witness was asked if that paper was his, and he answered, in no sense was it his composition, nor did he dictate it.

The foregoing question was objected to by Mr. Fullerton, but Judge Neilson decided on taking the answer, and the witness continued. His attention being called to the clause, "I ask through you Theodore Tilton's forgiveness, &c.," he said: I did not express those words or their equivalent that night; I did say that in view of the statement I made I felt I had wronged him and had

and was willing to humble myself before Theodore Tilton. In that conversation I repelled the idea that I was acting consciously; the words, "I wish I were dead," are not my phraseology, and did not express my feeling of sorrow; I was not in a logical mood, and am afraid I mixed my metaphors; I did not use the phrase "I shall die before any one but myself shall be inculpated." I did express myself strongly that I would sooner die than have caused such trouble; this was a strong feeling of remorse at the mischief which seemed to have been committed by me; very likely I expressed the phrase about lying there with closed hands, in substance, but not in that form. I saw her who had been a dear child and friend of mine lying there like one dead; very likely I used the words "She is guiltless, and bore the sins of another." I had been intimate in the household for many years, and if I had been the cause of her distress, I took the blame to myself and did so until 1874; the words, "Her forgiveness, I have humbly prayed to God that He may put it into the heart of her husband to forgive me," is not my dictation; I may have said that I had done Elizabeth incalculable wrong, but not that she had forgiven me and I was awaiting her husband's forgiveness. Mr. Moulton tried to impress on me that Tilton was impressed with the belief that I was an enemy to him, and if he could only hear my sentiments he would change that opinion.

Mr. Evarts showed witness a letter of June 1st, 1873, written by him to Moulton, in which he referred to a letter through Mr. Moulton, and asked Mr. Beecher who he referred to. The witness said: "It refers to this letter of mine that I hold in my hand."

The witness continued: In my interview with Tilton on the 30th of December, I do not recollect making any reference to Dante's Inferno.

During that interview he did not accuse me of adultery with his wife, nor intimate to me that his wife had accused me to him of adultery; there was no such question, topic, or allusion made in any manner whatever; there was nothing but a memorandum read about improper solicitation; there was no allusion to the arguments by which I had triumphed over her chastity. On the 2d of January, 1871, according to custom, my house was open to receive calls from ten until seven; I cannot recall such day, but only remember the custom of these days; according to my knowledge and belief I received about 800 callers on that day; I have only the most shadowy impression that Tilton called on me; there could have been no conference of any kind; there was none; I did not go up stairs or into my study with Moulton on that day, nor was there any conversation with Moulton about the propriety of sales of pews in Plymouth church; that belonged to the trustees; the sale usually takes place on the first Tuesday after the first Sunday in the month of January; there was no conversation with him about the letter Tilton was writing or about to write to Bowen, on the third of January, or thereabouts, there was

and myself, at Moulton's house, in his chamber; he was in bed, I think, from sickness, though he was sometimes in bed from late hours; I never saw him too ill to receive callers; while I was there Tilton came in; I had not had any intercourse with him since the 30th of December; there was no salutation between us; Moulton began by referring to the conversation between him and me, and was proceeding to tell Tilton something; I said to him when I struck in that I had been telling Moulton of Tilton, and of his hard position and circumstances; it was not a prolonged conversation, but something of that character; after Moulton told him this I returned to Tilton, and told him how sorry I was at being connected in any way with his misfortunes; he had suffered from Bowen and also from unhappiness which was in his house; I said I would do all in my power to help him; Moulton said this was An Apology Which Any Gentleman Could Accept.

He said, "Theodore, you ought to accept this apology when he expresses regret for the present and promises to help in the future." Tilton accepted the apology, we shook hands and Tilton withdrew; I do not think there was any talk of the charges made by Mrs. Tilton on this occasion after Tilton left; I do not recall much of what passed between Moulton and myself; there was no such thing said by Moulton when Tilton came in, as he has done all that man could do except to make a public statement of facts, or anything to that effect; there was not a word said to me by Tilton about how could he be expected to forgive a man who had ruined his home and family; I did not say I would bow my head and go out of public life or ask whether it would be better to sell Plymouth church; I made no statement with regard to suicide or going on a voyage; there was nothing at that interview said about Tilton desiring to give publicity to the matter; there was nothing said about informing my wife, or that she would become my enemy, or that to refrain from telling her would be an additional favor; I said on that occasion that my feeling was not for myself, but for Elizabeth, and that my age and experience ought to have led me to avoid this; I did not say that was not always marked by sexual intercourse; it is odiously false; I did not say "how could I offer any mitigation for myself—that my sexual intercourse had been for love, and not for lust." Such questions were not put at that time; I may have had conversations about my reading to her, but not at that interview; I never said, on that occasion, that I sought companionship in Elizabeth; I do not remember asking Tilton, before he went away, if he could reinstate Elizabeth in his affections. I did not use the expression about a man sitting on the brink, nor say that I was like

The Relationship Between Myself and Elizabeth

A Man Sitting on the Edge of Hell.

I may have told him that I had written a letter to Bowen taking back a great deal I had said about Tilton; I wrote the letter that morning before the interview; from that up to the 13th or 14th of the month I saw Moulton for short spaces of time, in which we had brief conversations; it was some time in February before I had a talk with him about Tilton's business—about how to reinstate him and build up his household; in one interview with Moulton and myself, I think Tilton was present, when we talked about Bowen's treachery towards Tilton and me; this was about January 10th, I think; I fix all dates by the memoranda of my lectures; Moulton had secured passable peace between Tilton and myself, and we were talking about the best manner of repairing Tilton's affairs; Moulton wanted me to give him an account of the difficulties between myself and Bowen; I gave him an account of an interview between Bowen and myself at Freeland's house; I told him of Bowen's temperament and manner; I understood Tilton was preparing an exhibit or document which would bring Bowen to a settlement of his difficulties; this was talked about in my presence, but I did not see it until I observed it in the Golden Age; it is the same manuscript as was attached to the tripartite agreement; it was not read nor any part of it read in my presence, though the contents were discussed; Moulton asked me if the stories Bowen told Tilton were true, and if I was afraid of them; I said No, that I was not afraid of them and defied them before the whole world; Moulton exhausted his language in the intensity of his condemnation of Bowen's course; he said

Bowen was Mean, Treacherous, &c.

He said that Bowen meant to use Tilton to destroy me, and he would destroy Tilton; he meant that we should destroy each other and leave the track clear for him; I told him of my interview with Bowen at Freeland's house, and he (Moulton) was horror-struck; he questioned me if such a thing could be possible. I gave him an acount of the reconciliation between Bowen and myself at the close of the Friday night prayer meeting in a conversation about the document preparing against Bowen. The charges against me I do not think were mentioned as being in that document. They were not mentioned to me as they were afterwards in a letter. Moulton said, at some one of the interviews about that time, that Bowen said I had to him. I laughed and denied it. If I confessed adultery to Bowen I think I should remember it. Moulton spoke of Tilton's reinstatement as inevitable, and said he was bound to see it. He expressed it with such vehemence and determination that I thought he would succeed. Moulton did not say he would not carry Tilton's case into the courts if he thought it would rip up the relations between Tilton and myself. He did not say he would rather pay Tilton himself than do so. I told Moulton I had a memorandum of the points used in the discussion between Bowen and myself at Freeland's. He wanted me to hunt them up and bring them to him, and I did so. It was at this time I put all my documents into his hands, and this was among them. The paper was in Bowen's handwriting.

Witness was shown a printed copy of the manuscript, which he identified.

Mr. Evarts said the original paper was in his hands, but the counsel just now could not find it.

Mr. Evarts read a copy of the heads of the interview between Moulton and witness at Mr. Freeland's.

The witness continued: After going through the narration of the interview with Bowen at Freeland's, I do not remember expressing my feelings about Tilton. Moulton said that Tilton and I must stand together for the sake of his restoration, and see justice done him. Moulton spoke with the utmost confidence of Compelling Bowen to Disgorge.

He said Bowen wanted to arbitrate, but Tilton did not; neither did he (Moulton) as his advisor. I think at this interview Moulton said he would bring Bowen to his marrow bones; that he would bring him into such a position that he would do justice of himself without having any arbitration. Moulton did not express Tilton's purpose to take my name out of his letter or my relations with his family, nor do I remember Moulton saying he did not approve of the publication. Later, in the same month, I had an interview with Moulton at his house in the parlor, the day after his interview with Bowen. This was, I think, about the 12th or 13th of January. He did not send for me. I called to hear the result of this interview. He said he had seen Bowen at his (Moulton's) house, and that a long and full conversation, which he described, had passed between them, where he sat, how he looked and what he said. He detailed to me with some particularity a statement he made to Bowen of his treatment of Tilton, and the infamy of his conduct in the matter of his letter to me. He rehearsed to him different stories he had made about me; that he never told these stories to my face, and that at the interview at Freeland's he went over the ground with Beecher, and discoursed with him how they would heal their differences; how they went to Plymouth church and prayed together; that he shook a paper in Bowen's face, which was and that he (Bowen) looked up at my portrait on the wall and said: "How should he ever be able to face that man again." Then Bowen said he was willing to do anything, and I asked Moulton why he did not cause a settlement then, and he said because the time had not come.

Witness, while delivering the narration of this interview, rose in his chair, and with flushed cheeks, and standing at the edge of the platform, shook a paper he held in his hand as he related that part of the interview where Moulton shook a paper in Bowen's face. The words and action affected the people in the Court room, but a rap of the gavel by the Judge reminded them they could not manifest their approbation by applause.

A recess was then taken.

After the recess the examination of Mr. Beecher was resumed.

Tilton and the "Christian Union."

Question. Was anything said by Moulton as to whether Tilton could work on the Christian Union? Answer. Not at that interview. I think, sir, it was not far from that; it belonged to that same period and to that state of things.

Q. In that month of January? A. He never said exactly that. He spoke of what a grand thing it would be if Tilton and I should join forces on the Christian Union.

Q. Well, what did you reply to that? A. Well, my reply was that it was an absolute impossibility. The circumstances surrounding that paper and the feeling of the persons engaged on it would not permit such an association.

An Interview.

Q. Do you remember anything of a visit you made when Moulton was seriously ill, to meeting Tilton there, and having some passage between yourself and him? A. Well, I remember several. It was not an infrequent thing.

Q. Do you remember being there at that time that Moulton was regarded by you as seriously ill, dangerously ill? A. Yes.

Q. During that illness, now do you remember meeting Tilton at that house, when Moulton was very sick, and anything passing between you and him? A. I do not seem to recall anything more than that we met there.

Q. Mr. Tilton has spoken of it as an occasion on which you

Kissed Him on the Forehead.

Do you remember anything about that? A. Yes, sir; he is right—within about four inches. He stooped and I kissed him on the mouth. [Laughter.] I came from above where I had seen Frank. Moulton was suffering from rheumatism in the chest and heart. He was not well, was suffering, and I was apprehensive. I don't know that it was declared by judgment. I was apprehensive that in one of these attacks he might go off, and I felt deep sympathy for him. When I came down stairs Tilton was in the parlor. I met him and spoke to him as a friend to both of us.

Q. Spoke of Moulton to Tilton? A. That is what I said about his critical condition, and there were some other words interchanged. I don't know what but in the warmth of that sympathetic moment

We Kissed Each Other.

Q. Do you remember using any expression like this: "Frank has saved my life, and I would willingly give my life to save Frank?" A. No, sir; I don't remember any language like that. I might have said I would be willing almost to give my life to save his.

Q. Do you remember any expression of this kind: "Frank is very sick, and I am afraid he will die, and then, Theodore, what would become of your case and mine?" A. No. I don't recall any such.

Q. Mr. Beecher, I understand you to have said distinctly that the Letter of Tilton to Bowen

was not shown to you or read to you at that interview at the time? A. It was not.

Q. There was no interview at the time at which Tilton was present at which any such occurrence took place? A. No, sir, not within my memory.

Q. Did any interview occur with Tilton and Moulton at this period during January, the early part of January, from the 7th onward, at which any relation you had with that letter, or any connection which Tilton and your affairs had with the letter, and the subject of the conversation between you? A. I did not know there was any such letter until the spring of 1872. I knew there were slips in progress and documents forming which were to bring a settlement with Bowen and a statement, but that it took no form of a letter, or that it was a letter, that I had anything to do with, or that I knew of its contents. I had no knowledge of it.

Q. Do you remember, Mr. Beecher, whether at any of the interviews spoken of about this middle period of January, or at any time thereabouts, at any interview between Moulton and yourself, did anything of this kind occur on the subject of Miss Turner? Did Moulton tell you that Tilton thought to have about; that she knew of all the facts as between Beecher and Mrs. Tilton? A. No, sir. Shall I give full knowledge of Bessie Turner?

Q. No, not at this moment; a little further on. A. No, sir, nothing of the sort.

Q. Did anything of that kind occur? A. Nothing of that kind, that is, I am speaking with reference to her removal.

Q. The period in January? A. During January Bessie Turner was spoken of, and her stories were spoken of, but I understood your question with reference to her necessary removal on account of her knowledge of my relations to Mrs. Tilton.

Q. Yes. A. There was no such knowledge in any way brought to me.

Q. And did Moulton say anything of this kind to you? A. I thought she was better out of the way than here.

Q. Did you reply "I thought so, too?" A. I never saidit, and I never answered in any such way.

Q. Was it represented to you by Moulton at any such interview that Mrs. Tilton said, as Tilton told him, that the best way was for her to be out West to school? A. No, sir; I knew nothing about her going West to school.

Q. Did he tell at that time that Tilton could not afford to pay her expenses, and did you say that "I will pay the expenses, or do anything else necessary to keep this story down," or anything of that kind? A. Nothing of the sort. There was no consultation with me of any sort or description with respect to the disposition of Bessie Turner. The first knowledge of her whereabouts was when I was called upon to pay her first instalment.

A Letter from Mrs. Morse.

Q. In the latter part of that year, Mr. Beecher, an interview has been spoken of by both Mr. Moulton and Tilton, at which a letter of Mrs. Morse's was brought under consideration?

A. Towards the end of January I received a letter from Mrs. Morse, which I gave to Mr. Moulton. [Handed a letter by Mr. Evarts.] I remember this letter. I took it to Mr. Moulton. I presume he read it, and he kept it. We had a conversation about it. He read it in my presence and before me. I asked him how it ought to be treated, and he answered that he thought it ought to be treated kindly. He said and hated Theo. Tilton; that she magnified stories that were not true, and that she devotedly loved her daughter. It was assumed that this whole letter was to be treated as a hallucination of Mrs. Morse, and the charges with regard to Tilton were to be denied, as they were not true. I wrote a letter in answer to Mrs. Morse in Mr. Tilton's presence. [Shown a letter.] This is the sketch I drew up and showed him, which he approved, and I went home.

Mrs. Morse was Crazy

Another Story Disposed Of.

Q. At this interview was anything said about the passage in that letter which imputes to Tilton having stated that you preached to forty of your mistresses? Was there anything in that letter of Mrs. Morse charging that Tilton had stated that? A. Well, sir, is that charge made in that letter?

Mr. Beach shook his head.

Mr. Beecher (to Mr. Beach.)—So I thought.

Q. I believe there is nothing in that letter, Mr. Beecher, upon that subject? A. That letter contains simply a charge of repeating the story of his domestic difficulties and troubles.

Q. Was there any conversation at either of those interviews of the 10th of January in which these topics were talked of—Mrs. Morse or her letter? Was anything said about whether or no Tilton had told more or less persons—twelve persons—of your criminal relations with Mrs. Tilton? A. No, and there was nothing in the letter and nothing in the conversation.

Mr. Beach: I move to have the first part of the answer struck out.

The Court. Well, it may be excluded.

Q. At that interview, or in that letter, was anything said to you of Tilton's having told any number of persons, twelve, or any other number, of your criminal relationship with Mrs. Tilton.

A. There was no such conversation about criminal relations with Mrs. Tilton.

No Mention of Tilton's Charges.

Q. Was there at any time, in any of these conversations, from the beginning of the period we have now reached, say the end of January, 1871, any mention made in your hearing by Moulton or Tilton that there was criminal relation or ever had been between you and Mrs. Tilton? A. No mention and no implication.

Q. Was the word "crime" in regard to your conduct used by either of these gentlemen, or any one else in your presence? A. No, none; no such term.

Q. Now, did anything of this kind occur at this interview, or either of these interviews at the end of January? Did Mr. T. say to you "I then said that after Mrs. Tilton had made her confession to me in July, 1870, that I had shortly after that informed Oliver Johnson and Mrs. Martha Bradshaw that during the summer I had informed no other person, but told him possibly twelve did know of this fact." Was there any conversation of that kind that had anything to do with any criminal relations between you and Mrs. Tilton? A. No, nothing.

No Other Confidants.

Mr. Evarts. Now, were the names of Oliver Johnson and of Mrs. Martha Bradshaw as persons to whom anything had been communicated, introduced in those conversations, or either of them, in the end of January? A. I think not. If they were, I do not remember it. Both of their names came in later, but I do not recall them as being mentioned as early as this.

Q. At either of these conversations, was there anything said about Tilton having said or reported that you preached to forty mistresses, or any number of mistresses, in your church? A. No, sir, not as late as last January.

Q. When did any conversation occur about that? A. I should think it was somewhere about during the first two weeks of January. I went to Moulton with a statement that Tilton had made that statement, that it had been brought to me by credible authority, and this was after things were in

A Train for Harmonious Adjustment.

He denied it in behalf of Tilton.

Q. Moulton did? A. Yes sir; subsequently he explained to me that he had seen Tilton, and that Tilton had rectified the statement which he had made in the quarter it was likely to do injury.

Q. Was there anything said at these conversations, or either of them, in regard to information given by Tilton concerning the relations between you and Mrs. Tilton to her mother, Mrs. Morse? Were you informed at either of these conversations by Mr. Tilton that Mrs. Tilton had informed her mother, Mrs. Morse? A. I do not recall it.

Pastoral Visits.

Q. Was anything said about Joseph Richards, Mrs. Tilton's brother, having come to him (Tilton) and asked him whether or not he had noticed Beecher's visits to his house, and whether he was quite sure that they were altogether of a pastoral character? Was there any conversation of that character? A. Between me and whom?

Q. And Mr. Tilton. A. No, sir; no, sir.

Mrs. Morse Carrying Stories.

Q. Was there anything said to you by Tilton of this nature that Mrs. Morse was propagating a statement in this way, namely, that she was saying among her family and relatives that Theodore made such and such a charge against Elizabeth, and that her method of denouncing Tilton for making such charges was a very fatal way of propagating the charges themselves. A. I shall have to hear that again, sir; I did not get exactly the hang of the question.

Q. The question is whether in this conversation Tilton said to you? A. All these things.

Q. Anything of this kind, whether he told you Mrs. Morse was propagating the story in this way, namely, that she was saying among her family and relations that Theodore made such and such charge against Elizabeth, and that her method of denouncing him, that is Tilton, for making such charges was a very fatal way of propagating the charges themselves; that is, that Mrs. Morse's denunciation for making these charges against his wife was a mode of themselves? A. I don't remember any such conversation. I think it is impossible for such a statement to be remembered had it ever been made, but I don't think that the substance that I seem to gather out from that question came into the conversation between us. Various and divers were the conversations in respect to the animosity that Mrs. Morse had against him, and there may have fallen out incidentally one thing or another bearing upon it, but it was scattered up and down in the conversations in such a way that it has escaped my mind so much that I cannot give it definiteness.

Q. But whatever may or may not have been said in regard to any propagation or statement of any story, was it said to you by either Moulton or Tilton that any such story was a story of criminal intimacy between you and Mrs. Tilton? A. Never. Tilton nor Moulton never stated that Mrs. Morse was circulating that I had had criminal intercourse with her daughter.

Q. Nor anything of that kind? A. Nor anything of that kind.

Q. You remember, Mr. Beecher, that there are three letters in evidence, all bearing the date on the 7th of February? A. I do, sir.

Another Interview with Moulton.

Q. Now, sir, do you remember an interview shortly preceding that date, and with whom? A. With Moulton.

Q. Where was that? A. At his house.

Q. Was the subject of whether or no Bowen would restore Tilton to the Independent brought up by Moulton?

Mr. Fullerton—That is a leading question, and very objectionable.

Judge Neilson—You might ask whether anything was said on that subject, and if so, what. It is rather leading, I think.

Mr. Evarts—Was anything said at this conversation as to whether or not Bowen would restore Tilton to the Independent? A. I don't recall it in connection with that interview.

Q. What was the commencement of that interview, as you do recollect it? A. I don't know. I don't remember what the commencement was. I don't remember the substance of it.

Q. Well, was Tilton's relations or expectations in regard to the Independent made the subject of conversation at that interview? A. My own impression is that they were not.

Q. Well, was anything said about any other paper? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What was that? A. Well, the Golden Age was then under discussion. "Tilton is going to have a paper for himself" was the keynote, and it was desirable. Shall I go on?

Q. Yes. A. I don't pretend to give the order of thought nor the language, but the body of the interview or discussion was that

that he shan't be voiceless nor put out, and that with my influence, and that of my friends, and that of his friends, a journal could be established; and if we were to stand together unitedly, and if I would sincerely and cordially aid, everything might be accomplished that was desirable. At that interview he expressed more fully what he had intimated at several interviews, that one great hinderance to Tilton's happiness and ease of working was that Elizabeth did not do her part at home, that she was discontented and sullen, and that it was impossible to expect

A Man of Genius

(and Moulton spoke of Tilton as a man of genius) to work all day; for, he said, "Isn't it grand that he has just gone over there and taken off his coat and gone to work right at the bottom again, as if he had never had a position and is trying to earn his bread?" He spoke of it as impossible for a man of genius to return home at night and find his wife crying or sitting at the head of the table, sullen and unconversable, and that it irritated him. He said "Theodore is the easiest man to be led by his affections that ever lived. Elizabeth can do anything with him, and she must do her part, and you must help to make her." That was the general form of counsel, and then he suggested that to unify ourselves and take away all friction, and that to give to this new enterprise the advantage of perfect unity of feeling and counsel, it would be if I should write a letter to him (Moulton), for him to show to Tilton, expressive of committing himself on paper to the expression of my cordiality toward him, and also a letter to Mrs. Tilton (with whom I had more influence, he said, than any living being) in order to bring her under Moulton's counsel, which would be concurrent with my counsel and judgment, and so the family would be brought in. Tilton would make for him. I would help him. Frank would help him. Our friends would help him, and with his power and experience and skill he would have a journal that would be heard of through all the land. I thought that it was not an unwise plan. I wrote the letters to him and to her, and put them in Moulton's hands.

The Question of Restoring Tilton.

Q. Now, you have spoken heretofore, Mr. Beecher, of Moulton saying that the principal thing to be done or aimed at was that Bowen put Tilton back on the Independent. Previous to this conversation that you speak of, had you heard in any way from Moulton whether that expectation or plan had or had not been abandoned? A. He told me in an interview following the interview with Bowen that he had made suggestions to Bowen, and Bowen had not yielded then, but said he did not now see how it could be, how he could put him back.

Q. And this had preceded your conversation about the newspaper? A. That was the conversation somewhere about the 12th or 13th, and this was in February, just before the 7th.

Letters by Beecher.

Witness was here handed two letters.

Q. Please say if these are the two letters that you wrote? A. Yes, sir; that is the one to Moulton, and this is the one to Mrs. Tilton.

Q. Now, there is a third letter, from Mrs. Tilton to Moulton, of the same date. Please look at it, and say whether you saw that on or about the time of the date, or where for the first time? A. I can't say certainly whether I saw it immedialely after that. There was no concurrent interview following the writing of this letter.

Q. And your two letters were written independent of seeing this? A. Yes, sir, without seeing that at all.

Q. This letter, Mr. Beecher, to Mrs. Tilton begins in this way: "My dear Mrs. Tilton—When I saw you last I did not expect ever to see you again or to be alive many days. God was kinder to me than were my own thoughts." When was the last time prior to the seventh day of February that you had seen Mrs. Tilton? A. I suppose I had not seen her since the interview of December 3d.

Q. Well, that is your recollection? A. That is my recollection of the purport of this opening sentence.

Q. And of the fact that you had not seen her? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you used this expression, "When I saw you last I did not expect ever to see you again or to be alive many days?" Now, what was there in your situation that led you to have an impression of that shortness of your life? A. That was shortness of both our lives, sir. She looked to me as one already Bespoken For By God's Angels.

Then the terrible whirl to which I was subject—the fiery excitement—it did not seem to me that I could live long.

Q. And in that it was of her life and your own feelings that you wrote that expression? A. Yes, sir.

Q. In concluding this letter, Mr. Beecher, you say, "This is sent with Theodore's consent, but he has not read it." Was that the fact, as you understood it, that Tilton had not read the letter? A. Yes, sir; I understood it so, but that closes the suggestion of Moulton.

Q. I was going on to the next sentence—"Will you return it to me by his hands? I am very earnest in this wish for all our sakes, as such a letter ought not to be subject to even a chance of miscarriage." Was that clause the subject of conversation between you and Moulton in the preparation of the letter or in advising the letter? A. It was, sir.

Q. And was inserted in the letter? A. It was a suggestion of his, which I carried out. I can give you the reason stated.

Q. Stated by Mr. Moulton? Well, what did he say in that connection? A. I cannot give you what he said, but I can give you what he suggested.

Blinding Mrs. Tilton.

Q. Well? A. That Elizabeth Tilton would not likely receive a document from Tilton's hands. The idea was that if she thought that Tilton and I had got up this letter together, it would not have any influence with her.

Q. Yes? A. And that we had better suggest to her that he had not seen it, and, therefore, it was my letter and was my judgment.

Q. And that was the fact? A. That was the fact, at least so far as I know.

Q. And then as to the return of the letter, you left the letter with Moulton? A. I gave the letter to Moulton for disposal.

Q. To be sent by Tilton apparently?

Mr. Beach. No, to be returned.

Mr. Evarts (reading) This is sent with Theodore's consent? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Well, how did you know or how were you advised as to that? A. Moulton, that is Tilton, consented that I should write a letter to his wife with this general design, but he did not see the letter.

Q. And it was through Moulton that you received that information? A. Yes, sir.

Q. That Tilton consented, and by his advice this letter was written? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you request of Moulton to get Tilton's permission to write that letter? A. No, sir.

Q. From whom did the communication on the subject first proceed? A. Moulton was the engineer of the whole proceeding.

Communications With Mrs. Tilton.

Q. Now, in regard to any arrangement or agreement that you should not hold any communication with Mrs. Tilton, any correspondence with Mrs. Tilton, how did that arise, if there was anything of that kind? A. It did not arise. There never was any such arrangement.

Q. What was said or done by you in that connection, if anything? A. I always said it was an improper thing for me personally to act in this matter with Mrs Tilton. On several occasions it was suggested as a natural thing by Moulton that I should see her, and I declined always.

Moulton's Suggestions.

Q. What was suggested by Moulton? A. That I should bring my personal influence to bear upon Mrs. Tilton for the harmonization of our different interests, and my reply to Moulton was twofold: First, that if, as I then believed, Mrs. Tilton had transferred to me an undue measure of affection, my presence would make matters worse; or, if using that influence, I brought her into more harmonious relations to her husband, the sensibility of a proud man would accept such services at the hand of another very illy, and it would make matters worse on that side, and that, therefore, for both reasons, I had better not go.

Q. And so about any writing to her, were you put under any advice or restrictions? A. Under none.

Q. Mr. Beecher, Mr. Tilton says, in the course of his direct testimony, in answer to this question: (reading), "Before going to that interview, I propose to ask you, did you learn from Beecher why you were made the bearer of that letter from himself to Elizabeth" (meaning this letter of 7th of February) Mr. Tilton says "Mr. Beecher, whenever we met, particularly at that time, after her state of mind, asked whether or not she could endure to live, asked whether or not I was restoring her in any degree to my respect. He put such questions as these, if that is an answer to your inquiry." Now, what did pass between you and Tilton on the subject embraced by that question and answer? A. Well, sir, I always asked after Elizabeth with affectionate interest and respect.

Always Asked After Elizabeth,

Q. His statement is, you asked after her state of mind, asked whether or not "I was restoring her in any degree to my respect?" A. No, no; while yet her illness continued, I always asked whether she was ill, whether it seemed—she seemed likely to run down. There was a fear at that time that this illness would terminate in rapid consumption, and I had great solicitude, and I asked after her with that in my mind. And as to the other question, whether she was rising in his respect, I do not remember to have ever asked him that.

Q. Now, Tilton adds to this answer that I have already read to you, referring to you, "and he (meaning you) wanted me to be assured that Moulton, who was between us all, held her in kindly regard, and did not frown upon her because she had forfeited her honor. He was very anxious that Elizabeth should be assured of that fact." Now, what passed on any such subject or in any such connection? A. There was nothing. It is simply untrue.

THE ELECTIONS.

The Republicans Victorious in Michigan.

Connecticut Probably Carried by the Democrats.

Municipal Elections in Ohio.

CONNECTICUT.

HARTFORD, April 5.—Forty towns in the State give Charles R. Ingersoll, Democrat, for Governor, 11,158 votes; James Lloyd Greene, Republican, 8.808; Henry D. Smith, Prohibitionist, 792. Last year the same towns gave Ingersoll, Democrat, 9,808; Harrison, Republican, 7,828; Smith, Prohibitionist, 941. Ingersoll is probably elected by the people.

The Legislature, as far as heard from, is about the same as last year. Hawley is probably defeated in the First District by from 200 to 400.

HARTFORD, April 5, 10 P. M.—Eighty-one towns give Ingersoll 19,084, Green 17,-940, and Smith 1,366. The same towns last year gave Ingersoll 17,526, Harrison 15,-433, and Smith 2,035. Hawley, Republican, is defeated by about 200 in the First District.

The Republicans make some gains in the Legislature, but probably not enough to overcome the Democratic majority of last year. Hartford county, all but Hartford, Granby and Southington, gives Greene 5,939, Ingersoll 6,916, and Smith 312. For Congress—Sanders, Dem., 6,679; Hawley, Rep., 6,386, and Lyon, Prohibitionist, 101.

BRIDGEPORT, April 5.—P. T. Barnum is elected Mayor of this city.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., April 5.—Thirty-three of the forty towns in this Congressional District give Kellogg, Republican, 12,849; Phelps, Democrat, 14,158. The latter is undoubtedly elected.

HARTFORD, April 5.—Gen. Hawley is defeated for Congress by 490 plurality.

NORWICH, April 5.—Starkweather, Rep., for Congress in the Third district, is elected by about 1,000 majority.

NEW YORK, April 5.—With only thirty-five towns to be heard from, the Gubernatorial vote in Connecticut stands: Greene, 41,954; Ingersoll, 50,896; Smith, 2,398. Ingersoll is certainly elected by 7,000 majority. The Congressmen elected are: First District, Landers, Democrat; First District, Phelps, Democrat; Third District, Starkweather, Republican; Fourth District, Barnum, Democrat.

TOLEDO, April 5.—The municipal election to-day was exciting, but passed off quietly. At a late hour the count was not completed, and cannot give anything definite to-night. The result is doubtful.

OHIO.

CINCINNATI, April 5.—The election was very exciting. The vote polled was the heaviest ever known. There was considerable turbulence at the polls, but nothing of a serious nature is reported at this hour (11 P. M.) It is believed the Democrats have elected the entire ticket by majorities ranging from one to six thousand, Johnson, for Mayor, receiving the heaviest vote. The official returns are coming in slowly.

COLUMBUS, April 5.—The city election passed off very quietly. More than an average vote was polled. Heilman, Democrat, is elected Mayor by 800 majority, defeating Grove, the Workingmen's and Independent candidate. The Democrats probably elect all their ticket. The City Council will brobably be a tie. Official returns come in so slowly that accurate figures are impossible to-night.

CLEVELAND, April 5.—The municipal election in this city to-day was very exciting. No disturbances are reported. A large vote was cast. The official count is not yet in. The Democrats claim the election by a considerable majority. Nothing definite can be ascertained to-night.

CINCINNATI, April 6—2 A. M.—Returns from forty-four out of fifty-one precincts give Johnson, Democrat, over Robinson, for Mayor, fifty-five hundred majority, and Linderman, Citizens, over Fitzgerald, Democrat, for Police Judge, four thousand majority. The Democrats elected the balance of their ticket, including the Board of Control. Full returns will not change this result.

CINCINNATI, April 6—12:30 P. M.—At this hour returns from twenty-six out of fifty-one precincts have been received. Johnson, Democrat, for Mayor, leads Robinson, the Citizens candidate, by thirty-six hundred majority. The balance of the Democratic ticket, except for Judge of the Police Court, has about twenty-three hundred majority. Linderman, the Citizens candidate for Police Judge in the above mentioned precincts, has twenty-three hundred majority over J. W. Fitzgerald, Democrat. The latter's defeat is certain. On the county ticket the Democratic candidates for Board of Control have about twelve hundred majority.

MARYLAND.

ANNAPOLIS, April 5.—At the municipal election to-day, the Democrats elected the entire ticket by eighty-five majority. A disturbance occurred in the First ward between blacks and whites, during which pistols were freely used. One colored man was killed and six badly wounded. Two white men were slightly hurt. The difficulty originated in an attempt of colored Republicans to prevent negro Democrats from voting.

MICHIGAN.

DETROIT, April 5.—Returns from all parts show general Republican gains. B. F. Graves is re-elected Justice of the Supreme Court on both tickets. Marston, who heads the Republican ticket, has from appearances 15,000 majority at least for Justice of the Supreme Court, and the rest of the Republican State ticket is but little behind. In this county, C. J. Reilly, Democrat, is elected Circuit Judge in this city. Geo. Swift is re-elected Recorder without opposition.

INDIANA.

EVANSVILLE, IND., April 5.—In the charter election held here to-day, the Democrats elected their entire ticket except Treasurer and one Councilman.

NEW YORK

NEW YORK, April 5, 1875.

The Death of Professor Walker.

Professor Walker, who died at his residence in Brooklyn, from the effects of poison, was a man of scrupulously methodical habits, and being instructed by his physicians on Saturday to take certain doses, as laid down by Prof. Harley, of fluid extract of conium, or hemlock, he procured an ounce vial of the medicine, and going home, took it according to his instructions, and calling his wife to his side dictated to her the description of his symptoms under the operation of the drug. This dictation of symptoms was his invariable habit when taking medicine prescribed by the physicians or taken under his own course of treatment, he having at times been his own physician. The dictation was begun at 4:10 o'clock P. M., and was closed as follows: At 6:10 o'clock P. M.: Nausea, twitchings on the right side, trouble to articulate, eyes closed, fullness almost to suffocation in the throat, pulse about sixty in that part. At six o'clock—here Mr. Walker stopped and asked for some water. Mrs. Walker started to get some coffee, and had partly prepared it, when on returning to the room to see how her husband was, she was alarmed to find him unconscious. A physician was immediately summoned, and arrived at the house at 7:30, but the Professor was then dead. Mr. Walker was Past Grand Master in the Masonic fraternity in Illinois.

THE MINERS' WAR.

Trouble Apprehended To-day.

POTTSVILLE, PA., April 5.—Telegrams from the coal region represent all quiet, though trouble is apprehended to-morrow, when coal trains begin moving.

AN AMERICAN lady, cce very well known on the European operatic stage as Mlle. Gorabella, has recently made a great hit at Drury Lane, London, under the name of Miss Genevieve Ward, in the part of Rebecca, in Scott's "Ivanhoe." She will probably "star" in this country next fall.

BONDS at Frankfort 99.

PETROLEUM at Antwerp 30⅝f.

GOLD closed in New York yesterday at 114⅝.

THE commission of the United States Treasurer, Mr. New, has been forwarded to him.

THE appreciative references of the New York Herald to the Centennial exposition, will prove very gratifying, and serve to deepen interest in that important subject.

THE several rumors current to the effect that Mr. Johnson, the Commissioner of Customs, would be superseded, and that Comptroller Taylor would be dismissed, are authoritatively denied at Washington.

A SPECK of war looms up in Burmah, where difficulty is developed with the Indian Government. Great preparations are said to be in progress, and that, unless the difficulties are amicably adjusted, a severe struggle will follow.

THE Bradford Reporter, always presenting a neat, tidy appearance, looks particularly fine in its new dress of type. The Reporter is well edited, and always up in the news, and we are pleased to note this fresh evidence that it is appreciated by the Republicans of Bradford county.

THE report, so industriously circulated, that the reported Mexican outrages are to be used as a pretext for war with Mexico, is denied by President Grant. The report has not even been made the subject of conversation between him and the Secretary of State, although orders have been sent through the proper department for the protection of our frontier.

DURING yesterday we received assurances from both manufacturing and puddler sources that our article relative to a compromise of difficulties was not only timely, but that it was receiving earnest attention. We are very hopeful that we shall have an understanding, soon, whereby work may be resumed, on terms agreeable to both parties. Certainly the entire community desires the speedy ending of the strike.

WE submit the pest-house purchase to the tax-payers as a circumstance that deserves prompt attention. Captain Ward has received $40,000 and interest for it, a sum that has been frequently spoken of as extravagant. If so, it is as proper that the receiver should be investigated, as those who agreed on behalf of the city to pay it. If the charge is too great, the tax-payers pay it, and therefore should look into it. Investigate, Captain Ward.

SOCIETY requires, it seems, that a Cardinal of the Roman Church shall not only wear red stockings, cloak and hat, but ride in a carriage of elegant and costly make. Usually the Pope presents the carriage along with the title; but in the instance of the new American prelate the carriage is of home manufacture, but, it is said, very elegant. Thus we have the title and custom of Rome fairly described at New York. The new Cardinal will ride in the carriage provided with all the stately dignity that becomes a follower of the great Master, and an official successor of the society loving fisherman, whose name is accepted as one of the foundations of the Church.

WE are happy to state that the Democracy hereabouts are united as one man. There have been so many rumors of jealousies and contests that we supposed there remained a trifle of bitterness still. Indeed rumor has associated at least four names of Allegheny county Democrats with the several nominations of the party to be made in September. Two of these are for Governor, and two of them for Treasurer. As this quadruple candidacy is divided equally between what have been known as the factions, there was fair ground for the suspicion that all is not as harmonious as has been imagined. Still we dispel our doubts, and allow ourselves to be convinced that the Davids and Jonathans repose lovingly in each other's arms, full of charity, peace and love.

WE noticed, a short time since, the Penitentiary argument as applied to compulsory education, and now we have it used in the interest of good spelling. The spelling matches, which Professor Douthett described as "monkey shows," are favored by some others as contributing to virtue in the community. The line of reasoning is as follows: Bad spelling leads to careless and even hypocritical writing. Men slur over words, in order to hide defective spelling. The habit of hypocrisy, on the one hand, and the development of anger on the other, consequent on the difficulty of reading bad writing, lead to worse qualities, and these in time promote crime. We have thus a consecutive train of reasoning which is productive of remarkable results. Who will say, hereafter, that spelling matches are useless?

WE have no means of definitely knowing anything of the plans or purposes of the gentlemen who have gone Southward, but the make-up of the party that left New Orleans indicates with perfect clearness, the plans that are in mind. Mr. Plumb, Colonel Scott, and others, are railroad men and capitalists. Plumb competed with Rosencranz for the subsidy from the Mexican Government, for a railroad from the capital to Vera Cruz. When the line of the Texas & Pacific Railroad is considered, and the ease with which it can be made to connect with another line to the City of Mexico, we can readily imagine the vast interests involved in this Mexican trip. We do not pretend to special knowledge, but can readily see that a movement is in progress to link the railway system of this country with that about to be developed in Mexico. The plan is a feasible one, and once undertaken will, we are confident, be carried to a triumphant conclusion.

THE new authorities of San Domingo are disposed to make themselves ridiculous. After a careful study of Mr. Sumner's doctrine of consequential damages, they have concluded to demand $5,000,000 of our Government, as consequential damages for misconduct attributed to Baez during our protectorate of that remarkable gentleman. The bill of particulars for this remarkable demand will make interesting reading. How could Baez possibly do so much damage without actually eating the island entirely up, is a question. All its revenues, products, population, warlike material, and all and singular in the island was hardly worth the five millions demanded. It ought, also, to have occurred to the Dominicans that the Power which, with a single ship, could protect Baez, is able with its entire navy to protect itself against improper demands from a Power no stronger than that of Dominica. And while it may be answered that ours is an era of justice, in which right is regarded more than might, it is also true that we can imagine no possible application of Sumner's doctrine which will make this country responsible for the interior administration of a country during the continuance of a given reign. Baez claimed the Presidency, and exercised it by virtue of an election. He was overthrown by a revolution, largely aided from Hayti. It assumes that a revolutionary government can go back and claim damages against a Power which sustained the regular Government, which was eventually overthrown. Once admit this doctrine, and what a list of adventurous claims might be set up. We fancy, however, that this particular claim will not occasion very great hardship.

WE congratulate the Post on the immaculacy of its political wisdom. It assumes to know precisely what are the facts relative to the course of the Democracy in the Legislature last Winter. Its misfortune is, this being true, that it fails to state those facts accurately, and hence is guilty, precisely as it charges others with being. It has never been charged, at least in the GAZETTE, that the Democracy took no steps toward a Treasury investigation; but that what they did take were of a grossly partisan character. They sought to investigate Republican administrations, but fought against including that of McGrath. If the resolution had been so presented as to make it apparent that it was in the interest of the public, and not of the Democratic party merely, the Senate would have been placed in a false position if it refused to co-operate. But when the case of McGrath was included, the Democracy sickened of the subject. This is all there is in the question. We regard it as doubtful if they seriously attempt an investigation; but if they will perform their duty with some pretence to honesty, we certainly have no objection. As regards the legislation necessary to the Revenue and Sinking funds, it is well understood that the House originates all bills of this kind. If it desired to do what was right, it did not need to watch the Senate. In any event, the Senate was as clearly understood to be willing to concur in the transfer of funds from the Sinking Fund to the General Revenue department, as it was understood to refuse to agree to such an investigation as the House was getting up. If the Senate's refusal in one case embarrassed, its consent in the other ought to have relieved the House of all embarrassment. The truth is simply here: the House wished the Senate to agree to a resolution permitting it,—the House,—to investigate the Treasury. Such a resolution should have included the Senate,—creating thus a joint committee. As it did not, the Senate would have nothing to do with it. It is true, therefore, that we have nothing to credit the Democracy with.

SPRING LABORS.

The bright days, so long looked for and so anxiously desired, have really come to us, and the fruition of Spring is upon us. Farmers still speak of frost and delay in planting, but this only refers to the terrible effect of last Winter's cold, which sent the frost so deeply into the earth that more than usual of heat and sunshine is needed to draw it out. But balmy airs, genial sunshine, and all the inspiring influences that are associated with Spring, are here. The restless feeling that prompts to preparations for the warmer days,—the cleanings and plantings, the arrangement of house and grounds, the building of nests by birds, and the desire for green fields by all,—is upon all animate nature. What is the cause, and where the law of this restless activity in preparing for Summer? Why is it that the brute and human creation alike feel that the time of lethargy is past, and the period for energy has come? Why the restless, uneasy feeling that throbs through all nature? Is it that there is a reawakening of dormant energies, by the operation of some mysterious law, in animate and inanimate nature? The subject is as worthy philosophical investigation as many that have been carefully and maturely treated. We turn, however, to a more practical line of remark.

The sanitary condition of our city depends very largely on the improvement of these Spring days, in cleansing our streets, and preparing all parts of the city for the warm weather that will soon be upon us. Once the atmosphere is tainted with disease-producing agencies, and a sickly influence is scattered among the people, and we may struggle the entire Summer to rid ourselves from the presence of the destroyer. And if this danger would be avoided, an early and vigorous movement should be made toward putting the city in cleanly order. The past Winter, despite the intense and almost continuous cold, has not proved at all healthy, at least in this locality. Possibly the cold has served to affect, unfavorably, the general health, at all events, is it entirely certain that we have just had a Winter of unusual sickness. Aside from unusual forms of disease that seemed peculiar to the Winter, have been the usual epidemics in more than wonted virulence. Thus we emerge from the Winter, with lessened vitality, and illy prepared to meet any new attack of disease. Hence the importance of very special attention to the sanitary condition of the city at the present time.

The Winter has been unfavorable to the maintenance of cleanliness, so far as streets and alleys are concerned. We have had thirty-three days of snow during the past Winter, and our streets have been filled with snow during nearly the entire time. Every third day has brought a storm that served to replenish the existing supply. Thus the opportunity has not been afforded for properly caring for streets, and a large amount of filth and garbage has, necessarily, accumulated. Our health officers should leave their cozy quarters in Municipal Hall, for a few days, and inspect the various streets and alleys of the city, and, by ascertaining the exact condition of affairs, be prepared to take such measures as will obviate danger during the late Spring and Summer. It should be remembered that very unusual precautions are needed this Spring, if it be true that the smoke, in which our city is usually shrouded, is an absorbent of impure vapors. At the present our mills are comparatively idle, and hence any advantage usually derived from that source is entirely lost. Hence we urge that the present is the time for thorough sanitary examination of the city, and for taking precautions which will contribute toward a healthy Summer. If nothing is done, more than to clean the principal streets, we believe there is grave reason for fearing an extremely unhealthy Summer.

It is also proper to say, in this connection, that there is much complaint as to the quality of the water supplied by the city. Facts come to the surface which lead to the suspicion that aside from the accumulations of mud, there is also other filth which poisons the water, and renders it unfit for use. Certainly during the past Winter the water furnished has been exceedingly disagreeable, and, we think, has helped to cause the disease which has been so alarmingly prevalent. Not to dwell on a subject that is disagreeable, we insist that our Health Board should give time to the complete investigation of all that pertains to the sanitary condition of the city. If this is not done, and we drift into Summer, with all the disease-producing agencies around us, we will have a serious condition of things. In the past several years we have not known a time when close, careful inspection, and the most vigorous energy were so imperatively needed, as in this city at the present time.

A Sad Story.

Employed as a scrub-woman in the new County Court House was a woman named Mrs. Thompson, who once drove in her carriage and had liveried servants to wait on her. Her husband was the Mr. Thompson who took the contract to supply the marble for A. T. Stewart's new residence at Fifth avenue and Thirty-fourth street. The contract was made before the war, and resulted in the financial ruin of Mr. Thompson, whose mind became affected by his losses, and he died insane. Last week Mrs. Thompson was removed from her place as cleaner of the Court House by Commissioner Fitz John Porter, who doubtless was not aware of the circumstances above stated. The matter came to the ears of the Mayor, and he went immediately to the office of Commissioner Porter and had Mrs. Thompson restored to her humble position.—N. Y. Evening Post.

THE ANTI-SLAVERY STORY.

The Rise and Fall of Slavery in the United States---The Centennial Anniversary April 14th.

[From the New York Tribune.]

We have received notice that "the 'Pennsylvania Society for Promoting the Abolition of Slavery, and for the Relief of Free Negroes unlawfully held in Bondage, and for Improving the Condition of the African Race,' will celebrate their Centennial Anniversary on the 14th day of April, in Philadelphia, by a reunion of the representatives of the cause in which they have been laboring." Vice-President Wilson will preside. There is nothing in the quaint wording of the little circular to indciate more than a quiet assemblage of the members of any other local charitable society, yet it at once suggests to the reader associations with every vital change in the country—associations which every man among us, perhaps, regards with a certain degree of the passion and prejudices which have scarcely cooled since they deluged the land in blood. The "record of action" of this Quaker society, to which they advert so quietly, is more important, has touched deeper issues in the history of humanity, than even the record of our national growth in wealth and prosperity in the century whose close we shall celebrate next year.

If we could disabuse ourselves of personal feeling in the matter, and look at it coolly, we should find in the story of the rise and fall of slavery in the United States the most dramatic and sharply defined example in history of the conflict of moral sense and expediency and the slow growth and triumph of an idea over hard, palpable facts. In this case the mills of God certainly did grind exceeding slow. In 1620, a Dutch man-of-war landed twenty negro slaves in Virginia. More than a century and a half passed before any associated action was taken against the monstrous crime, which, in the meantime, had become national, and that associated action was only the meeting of a dozen men at the Sun tavern, in Philadelphia, on April 14, 1775. But the idea was at work. The Society of Friends, at first large slaveholders, gradually became convinced of the iniquity of the practice, and quietly gave it up, at great pecuniary loss and sacrifice. This fact should be remembered, as not the least glory of a people who have striven so faithfully to keep their garments stainless. In later days, to be an Abolitionist, was, for a Northern man who had nothing to lose by the emancipation of the slaves, not assuredly a costly virtue. But the Quakers asked no man to go where they had not first led the way.

The meeting at the little Philadelphia tavern was the origin of the Anti-Slavery Society. John Baldwin was the first President. After one or two meetings during the year, the Society gave no more public evidence of its existence for nine years; until, in fact, the war of the Revolution was over and the country quiescent. The Friends, it is stated, had necessarily become obnoxious to popular sentiment owing to their refusal to bear arms, and dared not run counter to it on another vital question. At the resuscitation of the Society in 1784, however, under the presidency of Franklin, it at once became a live, active influence in the body politic, the little leaven which at last quickened the whole heavy resisting mass. The history of this Society includes that of all anti-Slavery crusaders and the unflagging, dauntless battle, which they waged for a century. Even the most prejudiced Southerner must cede to the story the tribute due to a great drama finely played to great conclusions. On one side the wealth, the peace, the established policy of a nation; on the other, the one simple idea of Right. It was the pebblestone that slew the giant, but God held the arm that aimed it. The student of political economy, too, may find most curious examples in this long warfare of how circumstances, expediency, even baser motives, are brought to subserve a good cause, and insure it success; the student of human nature will find in the long line of illustrious names stranger records of sacrifice, of heroic daring, and of suffering than the boasted annals of chivalry afford. The roll-call of protestants against slavery begins with Washington, Jefferson, and Franklin, and ends with men as great of later day, but who coming closer to us seem more akin to ourselves. There are the hosts dead upon the field of honor; the uncounted gallant, hot-blooded lads, who left home, and work, and love, and died, nameless and unthanked, to free the slave; there is Lincoln, who kept pace with his time, and Greeley, who led it, died side by side in the cause of Liberty.

This quiet Society of Friends, if they tell their story truly on their coming Centennial day, will unfold pages of human passion, of change, of hopeless adventure more tragic than any which fiction affords. Their Book, no doubt, begins with the meeting of the half dozen Quakers in the little inn, and closes on that January morning when slavery was abolished, and the rising sun of the new year was greeted only by freemen. But we would suggest that the work undertaken by the few founders passed beyond the freedom of the slave and included the elevation of the negro and his establishment on a secure basis, physically and politically; and that work is but just begun.

A PARISIAN HOAX.

A Peculiarly Unpleasant Trick.

In Mrs. Hooper's last letter to the Philadelphia Press she tells the following: It is not yet the first of April, and yet a peculiarly unpleasant trick, which was recently perpetrated on a quiet elderly couple residing on the Chausse d'Antin, might argue that that festive anniversary had already arrived. M. and Mme. X. and their four children had just finished dinner, of which the chief dish had been a piece of roast veal. Their cook had requested permission to go out for a little while, which permission had been granted. Suddenly a ring was heard at the bell, and a note was handed to Madame X. It ran as follows:

MADAME: I have just learned that the meat which was served to you for dinner to-day was not veal, but—how can I write it? a piece of the little nephew of the butcher. He assassinated the poor little boy, and to conceal his crime, cut him in fragments and sold the pieces to his customers. I dare not return to the house.

FAREWELL.

This precious missive was signed with the name of the cook. Mme. X—— straightway went into hysterics; M. X—— was taken deathly sick, and the four children screamed in chorus. In the midst of the uproar in walked the cook and stood in blank amazement on beholding the confusion in the usually orderly household. Of course she had never written any such note. The butcher was guiltless of any assassination, and the veal was good, honest veal as ever was cooked. A scandalous hoax had been perpetrated by some unknown joker. Poor Mme. X—— was ill for twenty-four hours thereafter, and the husband, in his wrath, has invoked the aid of the police to discover the author of the unseemly jest.

THE CENTENNIAL BUILDINGS.

Serious Blunder About to be Committed.

The projectors of the Centennial buildings at Philadelphia have, apparently, committed a serious blunder in their plans by putting the different structures at such long distances from each other that nobody but professional pedestrians could make the tour without exhaustion. As most of the visitors will be there for but one day, it is desirable that doing up the exhibition in that time should be made feasible; moreover that the cost of a visit should not be indefinitely increased by carriage hire and car fare. These are vital considerations, and as no possible purpose is subserved by the magnificent distances placed between the buildings by the Commission, this mistake should, by all means, be remedied before it is too late. According to the present arrangement the machinery hall is a half a mile from the agricultural building and the latter is nearly a mile from the main exhibition building. The items of shoe leather alone, which the million of visitors would expend in needless travel, would feed the poor of Pittsburgh for a generation. The transfer of visitors by steam or horse cars from building to building would be an improvement on walking, but it would be a work attended with prodigious inconvenience and numerous accidents, and would represent an expense of at least half a million dollars, that might be avoided by putting the buildings nearer together.

Wrestling Match—America vs. England.

It is stated that arrangements have been completed for an international wrestling match for $5,000 and the championship of the world, between Major J. H. McLaughlin, of Detroit, and Richard Snape, of London, the champion of Great Britain. The articles of agreement specify that the men are to wrestle best 3 in 5, two English style, Westmoreland and Cumberland, and two American style, collar and elbow. The winner of three falls to win the match. Should the contestants win two falls each, then they will have to toss for choice for the final bout. McLaughlin is in England, where the match is to be decided the first week in May. The England champion stands six feet two inches, and weighs 260 pounds. He has been successful in a number of matches in England, and recently issued a challenge offering to wrestle any man in the world. McLaughlin, the American champion, hails from Onedia, N. Y. He stands six feet one inch, and weighs 259 pounds.

"PLEESE cum aroun and talk me to the spelin mach this evening," wrote an Oshkosh girl to her beau.

IT is claimed in England that the title of cardinal is not necessarily ecclesiastic and that it comes within the category of foreign orders of nobility that cannot be legally held without the direct consent of the Queen.

AT last Senator Hamlin rises to explain. He says he didn't intend to have such a sweeping increase of postage, but was merely a catspaw, in other words, that he acted merely as the mouthpiece of the Senate committee in offering the amendment proposed by the officers of the Postoffie Department.

AT Georgetown, Tex., recently a practicing physician, Dr. David F. Knight, sued James Burns to recover fees for applying a mad-stone to members of defendant's family who had been bitten by a rabid dog. Defendant pleaded that such application was not legitimate practice, and the jury failed to agee.

A BOY, aged eighteen, was detected in Poughkeepsie, N. Y., on Saturday night, in stealing five dollars' worth of goods from his employer. His parents made a settlement, and soon afterward the boy was discovered dead. In his trunk were letters showing that the goods had been taken to enable him to satisfy the demands of a black-mailer in Lowell, Mass.

THE President says he had no knowledge of the resignation or removal of Commissioner Douglass, and adds that Mr. Johnson, Commissioner of Customs, would be retained; so would First Comptroller Taylor, of whose honesty and uprightness he was fully assured; also, Second Comptroller Brodhead. There is a vacancy in the office of Minister to Peru, by the resignation of Francis Thomas, but his successor is not yet stated.

A MRS. OSMON, of Newport, Indiana, set a kettle of boiling water on the floor the other day, near where her little son, two and a half years old, was playing. The boy stepped suddenly backwards and fell full length into the kettle. Mrs. Osmon seized him and pulled him out, but he struggled and fell back again. Before he was finally rescued he was so scalded that the skin all over his body flaked off; and he survived the accident only eighteen hours.

THERE are certain tribes who bury their dead by exposing them on the branches of trees. A few mornings ago, in Paris, some soldiers discovered a package hanging from a tree, and apparently enveloped in toy balloons; on further examination the parcel was found to contain the dead body of a new born child. Later in the day the body of a woman was found in the Seine; on calling where she lived the police discovered the poor woman kept a toy bazaar, and her books related she had just attached the child to a balloon, hoping it would enable it to join its father in Heaven.

PERSONAL.

JOHN MITCHEL died in the house in which he was born.

THE Princess of Wales is said to be ritualistic in her tendencies.

ANDREW JOHNSON, JR., son of the Senator, is editor of the Greenville (Tenn.) Intelligencer.

MRS. ANTOINETTE STERLING was married on Sunday last, in London, to a Mr. McKinley, an American gentleman.

MISS SALLIE FRELINGHUYSEN, youngest daughter of the New Jersey Senator, will be married next Fall to a son of Hon. Bancroft Davis.

POKER JOHN, a noble red man of the Piute nation, is said to be such a proficient at the great game he is named after, that he has relieved his brethren of all their Government supplies, and has a corner on blankets, trowsers, and provender. This exhibition of skill prompts several irreverent newspapers to suggest that Mr. P. John be made an embassador abroad.

THERE is a general impression that poets die young, but it is certain that the air of the nineteenth century is salubrious to its greatest singers. We have come to consider our Bryant and Whittier and Longfellow as indestructible ornaments of our society. Landor died very old, and Tennyson and Browning promise long life. The greatest poet of France, Victor Hugo, is hale and vigorous in his frosty and kindly age. Goethe lived through a patriarchal length of days. And on Friday the foremost imaginative writer of the Scandinavian race attained his three score years and ten—Hans Christian Anderson—who was born on the 2d of April, 1805.

IT is refreshing to note the fact that, while the war of the Railroad Kings is going on in the liveliest sort of a way, Mr. Garrett is waltzing down among the orange groves and crocodiles of Florida, and Col. Scott has just gone to dance a jig in the Halls of the Montezumas. In the meantime Mr. Garrett left orders behind that he will not negotiate for an adjustment of rates until he is allowed the unconditional use of Col. Scott's line, through to New York, on his own terms; but Col. Scott does not seem to appreciate the wisdom of allowing his enemy to entrench his camp, before he knows what Mr. Garrett will do about it when he gets there. Most people would do pretty much likewise.—Phila. Times.

Latest Advices Concerning Money and Stock Matters.

OFFICE OF THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE, TUESDAY, April 6, 1875.

The activity that characterized financial operations on Saturday was continued yesterday. There is evidently a better feeling prevailing in business circles,—one of hopefulness, as regards the future, although at the present there is evidently much stringency felt. Yet underneath the present stringency, attributable to the slow trade movements, and delayed collections, is a feeling of confidence that we have seen the worst of the panic and the consequent depression of business, and that the future will be more hopeful and inspiring. True, we occasionally meet those among our manufacturers who still take gloomy views of affairs and think the year will not develop any special increase in business; while others, and the larger number take the opposite view, and imagine we shall soon have a much improved state of affairs. We do not seek to analyze these statements, but give them as current facts that illustrate the views prevailing. The general feeling, as we have said, is one of confidence and hopefulness.

A large bankruptcy proceeding was inaugurated in our courts yesterday, including several Pittsburghers. It refers to the Cascade and Escanaba companies,—the latter being a furnace located in the mineral regions of Michigan. The furnace is at Escanaba, on Green Bay, and has had a varied history. Bad management at first impaired its success, but of late, were it not for the depressed times, it might have succeeded. The greater portion of the liabilities are in Pittsburgh, the rest being in Michigan. Among the local creditors are about fifteen banks in the two cities, the highest claim among which is $23,000, but the banks are doubtless all secured. The total liabilities of the Cascade Company foot up $488,000, and that of the Escanaba $171,000, or altogether $659,000. The assets foot up between $300,000 and $400,000. These include twenty-eight hundred acres of iron-ore land in Michigan owned by the Cascade, and the furnace and thirty-two thousand acres of timber land in the same State owned by the Escanaba Company. It is said that the prospects are very good for a compromise with the creditors at about fifty cents on the dollar.

NEW YORK, April 5, 1875.

Money opened easy at 3 1-2@4, but just previous to the close 7 per cent. was paid. The final rate was 5@6. Prime mercantile paper is scarce and sells quickly at 5 1-2@7. Sterling was strong at 485 for sixty days and 489 for sight. The customs receipts were $505,000. Gold opened at 114½, advanced to 114 3-4, and closed at 114 5-8. The carrying rates were 1 to 4. Gold loans on time are quoted at 1-8@1-4 per cent. for use for thirty days, 1-4@3-8 per cent. for sixty days, 3-8@1-2 per cent. for ninety days, 1-2@3-4 per cent. for four months, 3-4@1 per cent. for six months, and 1 1-8@1 3-8 per cent. for all the year. The Assistant Treasurer disbursed $29,000. The clearings were $41,000,000. Government bonds were strong. Railroad bonds were firm and higher, especially for Pacifics and Northwest. State bonds were quiet, except Missouris, which were strong and higher at the opening.

The stock market, with the exception of Pacific Mail, Union Pacific and Erie, was dull and uninteresting. The first named stock was strong and the latter two weak. Union Pacific reached 71½. Pacific Mail went off in the anticipation that the election of directors of the Panama Railroad Company would be unfriendly to the Pacific Mail Company, but it appears that such was not the case. Erie was off on London dispatches of alleged frauds in the company.

At the annual election of the Panama Railroad Company to-day, the following gentlemen were unanimously elected directors: John R. Marshall, John M. Burke, Charles G. Francklyn, John P. Jones, of Nevada, W. B. Duncan, T. W. Park, J. G. McCullough, H. H. Baxter, S. C. Thompson, H. C. Emmet, C. K. Garrison, Frank Work and George J. Forrest.

The market was firm during the last hour of business, with the principal activity in Union Pacific, Pacific Mail, Western Union, Northwest and Erie. Union Pacific recovered from 70⅞ to 71⅜. Pacific Mail rallied from 43⅜ to 43⅞, closing at the latter price. Erie rose from 29 to 29⅜, but left off at 29⅜. Northwest sold at 44⅞@45 and Western Union at 76⅞@77. In closing dealings Rock Island sold at 102⅛, ex-dividend. New Jersey Southern was more active at 7@7⅛. Atlantic & Pacific Telegraph sold at 24½@24¾. Wabash reached 15½ at the close.

The Rock Island earnings for March show an increase of $108,000.

From the recent gain of 30 per cent. in the earnings of the Union Pacific road, the following estimates for the current year are made: Gross earnings last year, $10,550,000; add gain this year, 30 per cent., $3,165,000; total gross earnings, $13,715,000; operating expenses, 40 per cent., $5,486,000; net earnings, $8,229,000; interest on bonds, $3,200,000; surplus applicable to dividends, equal to about 14 per cent. on the stock, $529,000.

The transactions on the Stock Exchange aggregated 247,000 shares, of which 93,000 were Pacific Mail, 29,000 Western Union, 6,000 Northwest common, 5,000 Rock Island, 27,000 Erie, 5,000 Lake Shore, 7,000 Ohios, and 56,000 Union Pacific.

PITTSBURGH MARKETS—WEEKLY REVIEW.

OFFICE OF THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE, MONDAY, April 5, 1875.

There has been a fair degree of activity in general business since the date of our last report, although it is not what it should be or usually is at this season of the year; however, it is encouraging to hear that trade is improving elsewhere, and but for the labor troubles, there is no question but what it would be much better here than it is. There have been no very important features in the leading markets during the past week, excepting that there has been a gradual stiffening up in some articles, and an appreciation in values. Coffee and Sugars are very firm and Roasted Coffee has been advanced one cent per lb; the hog product is very firm and considerably excited, and prices, especially on Lard and Mess Pork are higher and still tending upward. Grain of all kinds is much firmer under the influence of the advices from the west, our main source of supply, and Flour, also, has stiffened up very perceptibly, and the indications are favorable for an early advance here. In general produce there has been a fair degree of activity, without, however, any important change in prices.

APPLES—There is no improvement in the demand, which has been unusually light for some time past, notwithstanding prices are lower than they have been at this particular time for many years; selling in a jobbing way at $1,50@2,50 per bbl, as to quality and condition. The consumption is very meagre as compared with what it usually is at this season of the year, while, on the other hand, the supply, both in first and second hands, is large.

APPLE BUTTER—Continues very quiet, and while the receipts have fallen off somewhat, the supply is in excess of the demand; quotable, in kegs, at 50@55c for good to prime and 45c for common.

ALE—Trade continues quiet and devoid of any new features, excepting that it is thought that the repeal of the local option law will increase the country demand. No change in prices.

ASHES—There is a fair demand but no change in prices, which we quote as follows: Common Soda, (48 ℔ cent) 3¼@3½ cents; refined, (57@58 ℔ cent) 4@4⅛; Pearlash, 8@8½; Potash, 7½ to 8c; Floor Spar, 2c; Manganese, 6½c Arsenic, 6.

BUTTER—The general position of the market has not varied much since the date of our last report. Dealers generally continue to report a steady demand for strictly prime to choice table butter, of which the supply is light, while, on the other hand, they allege that the market is still largely overstocked with common and medium, and that there is but little demand for it. Quotable at 12@15c for common; 18@22 for fair to medium; and 25@28 for prime to choice. The eastern markets are a good deal like our own, hence there is no export trade; choice butter would sell at the seaboard, but there is none here, and the lower grades are not wanted.

BUCKWHEAT FLOUR—Is about out of season and there is little or no movement in it; however, the supply in this market is light, and prices are nominally unchanged: 2¾@3c ℔ lb.

BEESWAX—There is little or no call for this article, and, in the absence of sales, we continue to quote nominally at 27@30c ℔ lb.

BEANS—The market under the influence of increased receipts, is easier as compared with a few weeks ago, and the demand appears to have fallen off, and prices are weaker, although not quotably lower; $1,90@2 for mediums, and $2@2,10 for navies. The receipts have increased considerably since the resumption of navigation, and the supply is accumulating, but the market will doubtless stiffen up again within the next few weeks, as they are the cheapest article for food that can now be obtained, and then the high prices of potatoes will, we think, have a tendency to increase the consumption of the former.

BROOM CORN—It is generally conceded that nine-tenths of the Broom Corn in this country is now held by speculators and dealers. The combination known as the "Ring" in Chicago, act as one man in buying and selling, and claim that the stock now on hand will be exhausted by the last of August should the present demand continue; that it will continue, there is little doubt. Manufacturers unwilling to pay the prices asked, have about worked up all the stock on hand and are compelled, in order to supply the demand for Brooms, to purchase at "Ring" prices, but are making just as few Brooms as possible, claiming that there is a positive loss in manufacturing. However this may be, we can see no "way of escape," since all kinds of Brush is steadily advancing. We quote: green hurl, 13@15c; green medium, 11@12c; green inside and covers, 10½c to 11½c; red tipped, 10½c to 11c; red, 9 to 10c.

BROOM HANDLES—Choice No. 1 plain, $17@18; good, $15@16; choice No. 1 painted, $28@30; good No. 1 painted, $25@27; Toy Handles, painted, $20@22,50.

BROOMS—It is evident from the quotations we have from different parts of the country, that Brooms are in light supply. Manufacturers have great confidence that from present indications in the Broom Corn market, Brooms must advance materially at no distant day. They claim here is no profit in making up Corn at to-day's prices, and prefer to hold their stock. Some manufacturers are purchasing large quantities of Brooms on speculation, selling only what is absolutely necessary to hold their trade, and positively refusing to enter into any contracts for future delivery. We have no further information relative to the proposed combination among our own manufacturers and we continue to quote "Union" factory rates as follows: No 2 common, $3,00; No 3 Hurl, $3,25; No 4, $3,75; No 5, $4,25; No 6, $4,50; No 3 Carpet, $4,75; No 4 do, $5,00; fancy, Parlor, $5,50; Steamboat Brooms, $4,25@5; Wisps, plain, $1,50@2; Wisps, fancy, $1,75@2,25; Toy Brooms, $1,75@2,25.

CHEESE—The general tone of the market has stiffened up somewhat under the influence of the advices from New York, but prices remain unchanged; we continue to quote, in a jobbing way, at 16½@17 for prime Ohio Goshen and 17@17½ for New York ditto. The export trade has improved recently, and this was the main cause of the market becoming stronger at the seaboard ports.

CRANBERRIES—$10@12 ℔ bbl.

CANNED GOODS—The market continues dull, unusually so for this season of the year, but prices have undergone no change since the date of our last report. Peaches (3 cans) $2,40@3 50 ℔ dozen; Tomatoes, $1,75@1,85; Corn, $2,50@2,60.

COKE—Trade continues to keep up well; orders are still coming forward quite freely both from the east and west, and the general outlook has improved very much within the past few weeks. We continue to quote at $2,50 ℔ ton delivered free on cars in Pittsburgh.

CEMENT & LIME—Youghiogheny Cement, $1,75@2 ℔ bbl; Louisville, $2@2,25; Keystone, $1,75@2; Rosendale; $3,25@3,75; Portland, $7,50@8,00; Calcined Plaster—French's, $4@4,25; New York, $3,50@3,75; Eastern, $3,25@3,50; Michigan, $3,25@3,50. Lime—Manufacturers have advanced rates, which last year afforded no margin for profit. We quote Cleveland, Fremont, Sandusky, and Gibsonburg at $1,65@1,75, and Eastern at $1,50.

CORDAGE AND ROPE—There is a fair degree of activity, although business in tolls, as in almost everything else is considerably below what it usually is at this season of the year. No change in rates, which we annex as follows:

DRIED FRUIT—The market has been exceedingly dull for several weeks past, but with a light supply and no disposition to force sales, prices are still maintained; dealers generally do not appear apprehensive in regard to the future, in view of the light stock. Apples, 7@7½ for common to fair, and 8@8½ for prime to choice; Peaches, (halves) 8½@9½; Blackberries, 9@10.

EGGS—With a diminished demand and an average demand, the market has stiffened up considerably since the date of our last review, and prices have been advanced 2@3c ℔ dozen; quotations may be fairly given at 26@27, some sales were made as high as 27c on Friday and Saturday, but as our market appears to be above all the leading markets east and west, it is not to be supposed that current rates will be maintained any length of time. A sharp increase in the receipts would soon bring prices down to if not below 20c.

FLOUR—The general tone and spirit of the market continues to increase in strength, and while there has been no quotable advance in prices as yet, the indications at this writing are that it cannot be much longer delayed. Nearly all the western millers are holding for an advance of from 25@50c per bbl. and dealers here, when they come to stock up will have to put up prices. There has been a sharp increase in the cost of wheat within the past few weeks, and the product must sympathize; and in addition, the former has been higher all season than the latter. We continue to quote in a jobbing way as follows: Spring wheat flours, $5,40@5,50 for Wisconsins, and $5,75@6 for Minnesotas; winters, $5,65@5,85 for red and $6@6 25 for amber and white. Rye Flour, $5,65@6.

FEATHERS—Firm. Sales at 53 to 54c for choice in round lots, with the usual advance for jobbing lots.

GROCERIES—Coffee—The late advance in Rio has been well sustained and the transactions have been large, reducing the stock in first hands on the seaboard from 170,000 bags to 127,000 bags. The market there closed dull but firm. At Rio de Janeiro the stock is large, but the daily receipts from the interior quite reduced, and prices very firm at ⅛c ℔ lb over former quotations. Sugar is steady and the demand increasing. The very limited stock of Louisiana held in this market is selling at low prices as compared with foreign Sugars, and at our quotations is lower that the present cost of purchase and expenses of laying down. A. Thomson & Co., of New Orleans, reports the receipts at that port, down to March 31, to be 94,285 hogsheads of sugar, 101,519 barrels and 6,184 half barrels of Molasses, which are far below the estimates made in the early season. This, in connection with the destruction of crops in Cuba, noticed in this column last week, will increase values and make a steadier market for all descriptions. New Orleans Molasses strong. Syrups steady. Rice unchanged.

GRAIN—The grain markets have stiffened up considerably since the date of our last weekly review, and for some kinds prices are higher, notwithstanding the demand continues light, being confined entirely to supplying immediate wants; dealers, however, are indifferent about selling at current rates, and it is not to be wondered at when the fact is taken into consideration that they do not cover actual cost. In other words, prices have not been advanced as much here as at the source of supply, and as long as this continues to be the case, dealers will be indifferent about selling. There is little or nothing doing here in Wheat; millers are pretty well stocked, and as yet refuse to pay any quotable advance, consequently there is little or none offering and there is not much inquiry for it. We presume it would be difficult to obtain more than $1,15@1,17 for prime Penna. or Ohio red, and yet it is doubtful whether it could be laid down at the figures named. The Oat market has stiffened up considerably, and since the date of our last weekly review prices have been put up 1@2c ℔ bu., and the tendency is still upward, notwithstanding the demand continues light; quotable at 64@65c for mixed and 66@67c for white, free in elevator. Corn, both Ear and Shelled, is in light stock and higher, although the demand is by no means urgent. Ear Corn quotable at 74@75 for mixed; and 77@78c for prime yellow. Shelled, 73@75 for white and mixed, and 77@78c for yellow—some dealers are asking 80 for the latter, and the indications are that it will soon bring the figure in question. Rye continues quiet and unchanged: $1,10@1,12. No movement in Barley in this market.

HEMP—In limited supply and with light demand, but prices still keep up; sales Kentucky rough at $175@180; double dressed, 13½@14c.

HAY—The market continues dull, with a supply considerably in excess of present requirements, but prices, although weak, are not quotably lower. Baled, $20@22 for timothy; loose, $25@30, according to quality and condition. Oat Straw $16@17; Wheat Straw, $13@15.

HOMINY—$4,25@4,50 ℔ bbl.

HIDES—The markee remains quiet for all descriptions except plump heavy steers, which are in good demand. Kip and Calf are in fair demand and scarce. Prices unchanged. We quote:

LEATHER—The general market is much the same as at last reported. Fine light spready Harness is in good demand; medium weight is dull and low; heavy in fair demand; Upper, Kip and Calf are very dull; rough Leather is in better demand. We quote:

MILL FEED—Continues in light supply, and with considerable inquiry the market is firm but prices are not quotably higher; Bran, $1,25@1,30 ℔ cwt; Shipstuffs, Seconds and Shorts, $1,30@1,35, Middlings, $1,40@1,50; Chopped Feed, $1,50@1,60.

MAPLE SYRUP—Is in light supply, and the most of what is held is old stock; quotable at $1,25@1,30 ℔ gallon jug.

ONIONS—$3,50@4,50 ℔ bbl, according to quality and condition. Onion Setts, $6@7 ℔ bu.

OILS—Lard Oil higher. Cincinnati extra winter strained, $1,17. W. Alexander & Co.'s extra winter strained, $1,07. No. 2 winter strained, 77c ℔ gallon.

PEA NUTS—Demand improving; sales of choice red at 7c; choice white, 8½ to 9 cents. Stocks here light.

POTATOES—There has been a very fair jobbing trade all week, and as the supply was just about sufficient to meet the demand, prices have been fully maintained, ranging from $1,15@1,20 ℔ bushel. There does not appear to be much inquiry for car-load lots.

POULTRY—The market is, and has been for some time past, almost bare of dressed poultry. Live Chickens in light supply; quotable at 60@75c ℔ pair by the coop.

PROVISIONS—The product of the hog at all the packing markets is higher. Sugar cured hams remaining, at the late advance, lower relatively than shoulders and sides. It is the general opinion that values will increase, especially in Lard, and that the summer will show very high prices for the entire hog product. Hams are now worth 13 to 13½c in Chicago and Cincinnati in hundred tierce lots, and offered sparingly at these figures.

ALLEGHENY LIVE STOCK MARKET—WEEKLY REVIEW.

OFFICE OF THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE, MONDAY, April 5, 1875.

ALLEGHENY STOCK YARDS.

CATTLE.

The supply on sale to-day was the largest we have had to record for several weeks, footing a little over 700 head, about 100 in excess of last Monday, and from 150 to 200 in excess of the average of the past two months; however, there was an increased demand and the market was active with an advance on the better grades, of which the offerings were small. The most noticeable feature we have to report is in regard to quality, which was unusually common; drovers attributed this to the scarcity of the kind in question in Chicago, where, with an active competition, prices were run up to a point that they could not afford to pay for shipment to this point. Prime to extra butcher stock, the kind wanted by our best butchers, have been bringing from 6¾ to 7c in Chicago for some weeks past, which could not be sold here under 7½@7¾, and this is more than they (the butchers) want to pay.

There were but few cattle sold above 7@7½ cents to-day, because there were but few good enough to bring these rates; the same kind last week would not have brought the prices in question by from 10@15c, and when we come to the common and medium grades the difference was still greater. In other words, while there was nothing sold above last week's rates, the average quality of the cattle was not as good by 15@25c ℔ cwt, which in reality was an advance to that extent. There was a full supply of Bulls, and while salesmen reported trade a little slow, there was no quotable decline in prices; there was also a fair sprinkling of fat Cows, but, as is always the case, they had to be disposed of at low rates. Bulls brought from 4 to 6c, according to quality, and fat cows, 4@5c. Prime to extra beef cattle, 7@7½; medium to good, 6@6½c.

Following shows the number of cattle on sale, the States they were from as well as the names of the owners;

SHEEP.

There was again a limited supply on sale, 182 head against 120 head last week; however, the supply was pretty well up to the demand, as some 500 or 600 were purchased at East Liberty during the past week; some of the largest buyers did not buy any at all, having in their slaughter house yards enough to do them this week and part of next. Hence, notwithstanding the very limited supply, it was fully equal to the demand, and prices were no better. There was a sale of 42 head averaging 134 lbs, clipped, of fair quality, at 4½@6c. In addition to these, M. A. Reed had 52 and McCaslin & Cole, 47, making, as already stated, 183 in all. Dealers say they can find no sheep in the country that will afford a margin for profit in this market.

FRESH COWS.

The supply of fresh cows and springers was the largest of the season, footing up 39 head; they were reported as follows: Hamilton, Laughrey & Co., 9—fresh cow and 8 springers, offered whole lot for $200; James Norris sold 2 fresh cows for $80; H. Nagle 3, at $40@45 each; John Beeler 3, at $45@50 each; P. Sheitmantle 6, at an average of $45 each; C. Riddle 4 springers, at $33, and 1 fresh cow for $40; James Shaw had 4; J. Buckenheimer, 2; B. Shaffer, 2; Cole, 1; A. Stakely, 2. Good milkers, of which there are but few offering, continue to bring good prices, but common and inferior are plenty and dull; the former may be quoted at $55@65, and $70 can be obtained for something extra.

HOGS.

The supply was comparatively light but mostly in the hands of regular dealers and fully up to the demand, which is steadily falling off; quotable at 8@8½ for common to fair, and 8¾@9 for prime to extra—there were but few sold at the outside figure.

PITTSBURGH PETROLEUM MARKET.

OFFICE OF THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE, MONDAY, April 5, 1875.

Trade continues quiet, and the market for the raw material continues easy, with a drooping tendency; immediate shipment quoted at $1,72½ ℔ bbl. at Parker, at which rate, we are reliably informed it can be laid down here in bulk barges at $1,87½@1,90, although it is doubtful whether it could be obtained under $1,90, but this would be considerably less than the cost by rail. We understand that the most of the refiners are buying their oil at Parker and having it freighted down themselves. Refined continues quiet, but as compared with Saturday, there has been no quotable change in prices; 12½@13¼ on cars here; delivered in Philadelphia, 14½; New York, 14⅜@14½; Baltimore, 14⅜. As will be seen, Baltimore is now the best market for Pittsburgh, as in addition to cheaper freights, prices are better there than at either Philadelphia or New York.

The Barrels trade continues dull and prices are weak and lower; we understand that No. 1 city make are now offering at $1,30. Countries quotable at $1,15@1,20.

J. KABERNAGLE, Sergeant, Signal Service, U. S. A.

THE stage of water last evening was 4 feet and falling. Weather clear and pleasant; business fair—not what it should be or usually is at this season of the year.

THE Rover and barges are filling up steadily for St Louis and the Upper Mississippi.

COM, S. B. COULSON and wife and Capt. Barney Earle, left for Yankton yesterday by rail.

THE Exchange, Capt. Sam Shuman, with Messrs. Harbison and Dale in the office, is announced as the next regular packet for Cincinnati.

CAPT. G. W. COOLEY, of the W. F. Curtis, is en route from New Orleans to Savanna, Ill., and will take command of the Bill Henderson.

ON Wednesday the Missouri was high and full of driftwood at Atchison, caused by snows melting in Nebraska and Iowa, as it is hardly time for the mountain flood.

BOTH the Allegheny and Monongahela Rivers were reported falling at headwaters yesterday. For latest intelligence from these and other points, we refer the reader to our telegraphic dispatches on another page.

THE towboats Sam Brown, Joe Walton and Tom Dodsworth departed yesterday with tows of coal, and the Boaz, Sam Clark, Sam Parker, John Dippold, Charley McDonald and J. S. McDonald will depart to-day.

PILOT CHAS. BOBO was arrested on Saturday, by order of the local inspector for piloting on the Tigress without a license, and in default of a fine of one hundred dollars, he was committed to jail. The boat was also fined one hundred dollars, which was paid.

THE J. W. GARRETT, from New Orleans, had her own barges, and was towed to Cairo by the sidewheel steamer Tempest and propeller Waverly; time to Cairo; only 7 days. The Garrett's owner, Capt. Booth, is in St. Louis, procuring 3,000 or 4,000 tons of ore for Ohio River.

THE cargo of the Lizzie Rea was worth in round numbers about twenty thousand dollars. Most of this was covered by insurance. The amount saved brought but a small portion of the loss. The boat was valued at seven thousand dollars, and insured at three thousand dollars.

THE Mollie Ebert from Cincinnati, R. W. Skillinger and Salt Valley from Ironton, and Carrie Brooks from Zanesville, arrived, and the Mallie Ragon and Salt Valley departed. The Ebert had an excellent trip, and, as will be seen by card, she is announced for St. Louis and the Upper Mississippi.

THE neat and reliable steamer R. W. Skillinger is announced to depart for Ironton and all intermediate points, leaving promptly at 4 P. M. Captain Russell has put the Skillinger in the Pittsburgh and Ironton trade to stay. The Skillinger will receipt both passengers and freight through to Cincinnati and Louisville.

THE Shreveport Times of Wednesday says:—The cargo of the Lizzie Rea was worth in round numbers $20,000. Most of this was covered by insurance. The amount saved brought but a small portion of the loss. The boat was valued at $7,000 and insured for $3,000. There was also an insurance of $500 on the freight lost. The loss of the cargo falls about equally on the agencies here and on the New Orleans offices.

YESTERDAY'S Cincinnati Commercial says:—The Fearless, from Pittsburgh, with a large miscellaneous tow, passed down at 4:30 P. M. Williams Randolph and Byron Clark pilot the Fearless to St. Louis.... Captain I. R. Waitaker returned to Pittsburgh last night by rail, after the Fearless and tow passed down from Pittsburgh to St. Louis. ......Mr. William W. O'Neal, the well known Pittsburgh coal merchant, is at the Gibson House.

THE Local Inspectors of Cincinnati have suspended the licenses of Charles H. Thomas and Leander C. Patterson to act as pilots of steamboats, each for a period thirty days, because of their negligence and failure to observe the requirements of the rules required by law, and so essential to the safety of life and property intrusted to their care. They were the pilots on the steamers United States and Wild Duck when they collided at Cincinnati on the 7th of December last.

A LATE Sioux City paper says:—About one thousand tons of Indian freight is now at Yankton awaiting shipment up-country. Boats will have plenty of work immediately upon the opening of the river. Captain John Barr will leave for St. Louis, to-day, to bring Captain Jim McGarry's new boat, Benton, up the old Muddy. He intends to remain on her as pilot. The river is on the rise at this point, and it is thought that it will be up enough to-day to lift the ice above the sand bars and let it run out.

A ST. LOUIS dispatch under date of 3d inst. says: Rates are the same with no prospect of an advance. Capt. T. F. Eckert passed through this city to-day, on his way from Jacksonport to Cincinnati. He made an examination of the Ella, and says the damage to the boat will not amount to $5,000. The hull is uninjured. Capt. Dugan is still here, and goes down to Cairo to join the Eckert on Monday. The stockholders of the Keokuk Northern Line meet on Monday to elect a Board of Directors to serve during the coming year, after which the Board will proceed to elect officers. Com. Davidson will doubtless be elected President, as he controls a majority of the shares of the stock. The Carroll left for Fort Benton with 140 tons. She was drawing 3½ feet. The C. W. Meade follows next week. The Ironsides and Nail City went down to the iron pile, and will leave in a day or two for the Ohio river with ore. Com. Kountz is still here.

HOME NEWS.

Those of our subscribers who have changed their places of residence, will please leave word at this office, in order that the GAZETTE may follow them to their new homes.

Presentation to Chief White.

Mr. Wm. White, Chief Engineer of the Pittsburgh Fire Department, was presented last night with a valuable gold watch of the most approved manufacture. It cost $350 and was a gift from the members of the Fire Department. The presentation took place in the rooms of the Fire Commission and was made by Mr. S. P. Fulton. The "ticker" was received by the Chief, who, in a pertinent speech, promised to see justice done though the heavens should fall. The affair was a genuine surprise to all save the initiated.

The Monongahela Wharf.

A meeting of the Monongahela Wharf Committee was held last night, and it was resolved, on motion of Mr. Hahn, to recommend to Councils ordinances reducing the rate of wharfage charged the Brownsville Packet line, twenty per cent. less than it now is, and establishing a wharf on the South Side. The March pay rolls amounting to $143.33 for the North Side and $108.33 for the South Side were approved and ordered to be paid. The receipts for March were $702 from the North Side and $200 from the South Side.

Heavy Failures.

The Cascade and Escanaba Iron Companies filed petitions to be adjudged bankrupts yesterday, in the United States District Court. The total liabilities of the Cascade Company foot up $488,000, and that of the Escanaba $171,000, or altogether $659,000. The assets foot up between $300,000 and $400,000. These include twenty-eight hundred acres of iron-ore land in Michigan owned by the Cascade, and the furnace and thirty-two thousand acres of timber land in the same State owned by the Escanaba Company. It is said that the prospects are very good for a compromise at about fifty cents on the dollar.

SERIOUSLY INJURED.

An Old Man Badly Beaten.

Yesterday morning about seven o'clock a man by the name of McAdew got into a quarrel with one Black on Webster avenue, above Roberts street. After talking for a short time it is said that McAdew jumped over into Black's yard and struck the old man over the head with a club, inflicting serious wounds which may result fatally. Last evening the unfortunate man was lying at his residence in an unconscious state and in a critical condition. It is feared he will not be able to survive his injuries.

ANOTHER ATTEMPT.

Determined to Die.

Some time ago a woman named Mrs. Dimmey, who resides on Chestnut street, Allegheny, attempted to commit suicide by cutting the arteries of her arm. On last Saturday she again attempted to commit suicide by hanging herself, but was again prevented from accomplishing her desire. Dr. B. B. Smith was summoned and in examining her found she was insane and at once had her removed to the insane department of the City Poor House.

DROWNED.

Death of a Young Son of Rev. Wm. Beyer.

Information was received in the city yesterday of the death by drowning, near Fort Wayne, Indiana, of Paul, son of Rev. Wm. Beyer, pastor of Grace Evangelical German Lutheran Church, on High street. From what could be learned it appears that the lad, who was attending college at Fort Wayne, went, in company with two or three companions, to visit his grandmother who resides a few miles from Fort Wayne. While out skiff riding, or crossing a small stream, the party was precipitated into the water and Paul Beyer and one of his companions were drowned. The former was about fifteen years of age.

ALMOST DROWNED.

A Little Child Narrowly Escapes.

Yesterday afternoon a little son of Mr. M. V. B. Douthett, of the Post, narrowly escaped being drowned. The parents reside on Mt. Washington, and there is a small cistern in the cellar. The mother went out a few moments before to get a pail of water from the large cistern in the yard and when she returned the little boy, who is about three years of age, was missing from the sitting-room. She searched about for the child and finally found him lying in the cistern, which is about four feet deep and had about two feet of water in it. The child when found was insensible, and had apparently stopped breathing, but prompt measures for resuscitation were resorted to and in about half an hour it gave evidences of life. Last evening it had almost recovered and gave evidence of the return of all its childish vivacity. We are glad to be able to record that the matter did not result seriously.

LETTING CONTRACTS.

Allegheny Water Works Department.

Last evening the Water Committee of Allegheny Councils held a meeting and opened the bids for supplies of material and fuel needed by the department, after which they let the contracts as follows:

THE PENALTY.

Result of the Hearing in the Cock Fighting Case.

H. S. Hixenbaugh, Pat. McLaughlin, M. Rogers, Wm. Peach, John Simmons and August Dell, charged by Agent Dean, of the Humane Society, with cock fighting, had a hearing yesterday before Alderman Mark Donley, of the South Side. All the defendants plead guilty of the charge brought against them and were disposed of as follows: McLaughlin, Rogers and Peach were fined twenty dollars each and costs, which they paid. Hixenbaugh forked over ten dollars and costs, and Simmons and Deil, being unable to pay a like amount, were sentenced by the Alderman to thirty days imprisonment in the work house. Learning that the two latter would be locked up for the night, before being taken to Claremont, Superintendent Street furnished them money with which to purchase their supper and breakfast. The "birds," four in number, which were captured when the raid was made, were forfeited to the Humane Society, and will be sold for its benefit.

ALLEGHENY STREETS.

Meeting of the Street Committee.

The Street Committee of Allegheny Councils met yesterday afternoon, Mr. W. W. Ackley in the chair.

The following contracts were awarded:

For grading and paving of Chapel alley, awarded to Fred. Gwinner for the sum of $1,686 65; for grading and paving Gerst alley, awarded to Fred. Gwinner for $2,440 65; for the grading and paving of Short alley, awarded to Carl Wynn for the sum of $451 04.

Chairman Ackley stated that he would probably be absent from the city for some time, and not be able to attend the meetings of the committee, and as it was necessary that some person should be designated to sign such papers as require the signature of the chairman, he suggested that a Vice President be elected to attend to such matters during his absence.

On motion of Mr. Hartman, Mr. N. H. Voegtly was elected Vice President.

The committee then adjourned to visit Fairmount street.

The Engineer was directed to prepare an ordinance requiring all property holders to make the necessary connection with sewers to drain their property.

THE STABBING AFFRAY.

Condition of the Wounded Man Yesterday—Consultation Among Physicians—He is Thought to be Improving—The Prisoner Released.

Last evening Drs. Hardtmeyer, Dickson and Hechelman visited John Beck, the man who was stabbed on Spring Hill, Allegheny, on Sunday evening, at his home on Kilkenbeck street, and made a careful examination of his wounds. They found that the wound between the left shoulder blade and the spine, which is nearly three inches in length is the most serious, although no vital organ has been injured, while the other wound in the back is merely a flesh wound. Hopes of his recovery are entertained by his physician, Dr. Hardtmeyer, who called on Mayor Phillips last night and notified him. Mr. Knoblauch was then released on $2,000 bail for a hearing Friday afternoon. Early yesterday morning Alderman Krehan went securiety in the sum of $1,000 for the appearance of Otto Frey for a hearing before Mayor Phillips on Friday afternoon. Frey is so badly used up that he was not able to leave his home. About three o'clock yesterday afternoon Mayor Phillips went to Beck's residence and took an information charging Knoblauch with felonious assault and battery.

In our report of the affair yesterday morning we erred in saying that it occurred in front of Mr. Zang's house, as it took place nearly a square from his house. Knoblauch still denies the cutting and it seems that no person saw who did the cutting, although Beck is positive that Knoblauch did it. The full facts in regard to the matter will be brought out at the hearing on Friday.

Dr. Sadler, Oculist and Aurist, has removed to No. 256 Penn avenue. Eye, Ear, Throat and Catarrh specialties. Spectacles perfectly adjusted to weak eyes. TTHS

CONTRACTS AWARDED.

Meeting of the Water Committee Last Night—Supplies for the Ensuing Year—The Bids.

The Water Committee met in regular session last night. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved, after which the pay rolls and monthly bills amounting to $11,634.20 were examined and ordered to be paid. These include the bill of A. Hartupee for making a new cylinder for the Sampson engine at the new water works.

A claim made by Felix Negley, Esq., for discounts, was referred to a special committee. Mr. Negley has the contract for furnishing the old water works with coal, and he alleges that the contract calls for the payment of his bills in cash. Upon presenting his warrants to the City Treasurer. Payment was refused, and he was obliged to have them discounted, hereby sustaining a loss of overtwo hundred dollars.

A number of bids for fire plugs, miscellaneous and special castings, ferrules, oil, water pipes, etc., for the ensuing year, were opened as follows:

Bailey, Farrell & Co	$10 50 per doz.
A. Fulton, Son & Co	10 25 " "
A. J. McKenna	12 75 " "
Loughrey & Coll	9 48 " "

After a long and tedious discussion the contract for miscellaneous castings was awarded to Onions & Baldwin; for water pipes to James Marshall & Co.; for fire plugs to A. Hartupee, and for ferrules, &c., to A. Fulton, Son & Co. The bid of Loughrey & Coll, on ferrules, &c., was thrown out because it was not accompanied by a bond as called for in the advertisement. The contract for stop-gates was let to Armstrong & Hutchinson. On the awarding of the contract for special castings, which in the course of a year amounts to a considerable sum, there was a long and determined fight. Some of the members of the committee desired to throw out the bid of Wm. Smith because it was not accompanied by a bond. The contract was at one time given to James Marshall & Co., but that action was reconsidered and after a lengthy debate it was let to Wm. Smith on the condition that he files his bond within three days, and in the event of that not being done it goes to James Marshall & Co., whose bond was on hand last night. For furnishing oil the only bid was from Paine, Ablett & Trip, and as no bond accompanied it, it was laid over until the next meeting.

Water Assessor Bostwick was allowed another clerk during the busy season and the committee adjourned.

The Water Extension Committee decided to hold a meeting on Friday night.

THE PEST HOUSE SITE.

The Citizens of the Hill District Hold a Meeting to Ask for its Removal—A Number of Addresses Made—Resolutions Adopted—A Committee Appointed to Visit Councils—Another Meeting to be Held one Week from To-night.

The citizens of the hill district, comprising the Eleventh, Twelfth and Thirteenth wards, held a meeting last night, on the corner of Wylie avenue and Kirkpatrick street, for the purpose of taking some action in reference to the location of the "City Pest House," in the last named ward. The meeting was called to order shortly after 8 o'clock, and Mr. John McLaren called to the chair. On taking the chair, the President stated the object of the meeting and asked Charles P. Duff, Esq., to give a history of the choosing of the present site for a pest house. On taking the floor (which in this case was a wagon bed) Mr. Duff said that in the performance of the duty assigned him he would be as brief as the subject would admit. He then said the Board of Health thought that a corporation could maintain a hospital of the description named better than private individuals and at much cheaper rates, which theory proved false. Councils legislated upon the subject of a site for a pest house, and after failing in different ways finally authorized the Board of Health to purchase a site privately in the Eleventh, Twelfth or Thirteenth ward, as the case might be. This action on their part was going beyond their power, so the speaker claimed. He then said that the first hitch was in the fact that Councils refused to make the proper appropriation and that when this became known the citizens of the "Hill District" sent in their petitions asking that there should be no payment made on the tract of land in question. Mr. Duff further stated that the purchase was not authorized by law because it had not been made in accordance with the law, and that on the same day which Councils made provision for the payment for the site they passed a resolution for its sale, causing the question to arise as to whether or not the legislative bodies of the city had acted in good faith. Councils, he said, may be putting up temporary buildings to ascertain the feeling of the people on this subject. Another question arises as to the wisdom of the selection as soon as the citizens of the Thirteenth ward had agreed to put $650,000 into street improvements. Along came the Board of Health with the pest house project, which depreciates the value of property to such an extent that it is doing an injustice to the residents of the district. The speaker argued that the only remedy which could be had was for the property holders to insist that the Board of Health carry out the resolution of Councils authorizing the sale of the site. He said such an institution in that locality would soon prove a nuisance; that a person could not feel safe in his own domicil for he would not know what moment a small-pox patient would come along and ring the door bell to inquire "Where is the pest house?" He thought such parties would soon be wandering all around over the hills and could not help spreading the disease among those with whom they would come in contact.

Mr. Duff closed his remarks by suggesting that the poor farm was the place for the erection of such an institution, if there was any necessity for one, but thought if the city would give them proper encouragement, the charity hospitals would care for all the patients who might need attention.

Mr. Henry Metzgar, Councilman from the Thirteenth ward, was called upon, and responded by saying that he thought it was poor policy for the city to maintain a pest house inside the corporation, as it would depreciate property to such an extent wherever located that the revenue from taxes would be greatly diminished. He agreed with the first speaker in making the poor farm the place for such a building.

Mr. James Breen was next introduced, who said Captain Ward had an elephant to sell when the pest house was talked of; that the city wanted to buy an elephant and that it had paid $43,350 for an animal worth about $5,000.

Dr. Thorn was opposed to the Thirteenth ward taking care of all the subjects in the city of Pittsburgh. He said the hill residents did not object to looking after its own patients if the city is divided into districts, but it did object to hauling the sick from all parts of the city through the streets, thereby exposing the children to disease who often hung on to a vehicle which was being driven along the street. He said the fault was in the property holders of the Eleventh and Thirteenth wards that such an institution was located on the "hill" at the present time; that the people should have risen up in opposition to it at the beginning.

Mr. Duff then presented the following resolutions, which were unanimously adopted:

WHEREAS, Councils of Pittsburgh did agree and have since issued certificates of indebtedness in payment for the purchase of a pest house site on condition that the said site should be sold; and whereas, The Board of Health have ignored the action of Councils in the premises, and have contracted for the erection of a Pest House on the lot purchased, therefore, be it

Resolved, That we call the attention of Councils to the petitions signed by 19,000 citizens, and now on file, and appeal to them to protect us.

Resolved, That a committee of six be appointed to visit Councils and lay before them our reasons for asking that our property be not depreciated by the erection of a Pest House

The following committee was appointed to visit Councils: Messrs. Charles P. Duff, Dr. Thorne, E. P. Jones, Robert Inder, C. H. Love and Joseph C. Dickson.

Mr. Duff moved that when the audience disperse a meeting be held again on Tuesday night of next week, and that the committee appointed perform the work designed them at the meeting of Councils next Monday. Adopted.

The meeting then adjourned.

A LIVELY KNOCK DOWN.

One of the Contestants Comes Out of the Battle Pretty Well Used Up.

On Sabbath afternoon a fire occurred in the Thirteenth ward, and the department being called out, the William Phillips engine, on Centre avenue, responded to the call. It is said that Charlie Rice, driver, was insulted and called ugly names by Fred Neiman, and that the conversation used between the two parties had the effect to stir up a little bad blood in both their veins. After returning to the engine house the parties had a little "set to," which ended in a short time. Yesterday Neiman visited the engine house again, and the old quarrel was slightly revived, but Rice paid but little attention to it and went out to give the horses some exercise. It is said that he was followed from one street to another by Neiman, and that as soon as he (Rice) had finished exercising his horses he went to the stable and told the foreman that Neiman was spoiling for a fight and that he was going to give it to him. The twain went out into the yard back of the engine house and the work was begun, which lasted for half an hour. Neiman came out of the battle with his face all battered up and a deep cut under one eye which required medical attention. Dr. Thorn was called upon to dress his wounds, who stated to our reporter that the man was severely injured but not seriously. The fight took place at about four o'clock.

THE LATEST STYLES.

Novelties in Looking Glasses—The New Mantel Mirror—Fine Mantel Pieces, &c.

Styles and fashions change in every class of goods, and in looking glass frames as much as any other. A visit to the store of S. Boyd & Co., at 66 Fifth avenue, amply proves this fact. Among other novelties on exhibition is a new style mantel glass frame called the Chameleon pattern. The novelty consists in the arrangement of three kinds of wood in adjustable layers, each of which can be substituted for the other at the will of the owner. By this means the frame can either be of rich French walnut grey maple or white maple, and the change can be made without trouble or labor. This is the latest style introduced, and is already becoming very popular. In addition to this Messrs. Boyd & Co. have in stock a full line of pier glasses, mantel glasses, cornices, picture frames, &c., all of the most recent styles and approved finish. They are now selling glasses at remarkably low rates, in fact at a reduction of nearly forty per cent. on the prices of last year. Another specialty with the firm is the manufacture of walnut mantel pieces which are exceedingly artistic in style. One of these now on exhibition in the window of No. 66 Fifth avenue, is really worth inspecting as a work of art.

For the Centennial Tea Party,

The china cups and saucers which are to be used at the Centennial Tea Party, at Library Hall, and which are to be presented to those in attendance, are very handsome in design and of the finest French china. They were manufactured by Messrs. H. C. Reineman & Co., whose store is at No. 201 Penn street. During a brief visit to the store this morning, we had an opportunity of examining the ware.

AMUSEMENTS.

Pittsburgh Opera House.

The greatest spectacular event of the season was the production last night of "The Deluge; or Paradise Lost," in which the famous Kiralfy's and the celebrated Faust family appeared. The display of scenery and rich costumery was very fine and probably has never been surpassed in this city. The ballet has been largely augmented in order to lend additional attractiveness and interest to the play, and that it accomplishes the desired object is unquestionable. The march of the Amazonian female warriors, in the fourth act, under the skillful leadership of Miss Katie Baker, was quite well executed, and drew frequent rounds of applause. The Kiralfy's and the acrobatic Faust's were given a warm reception. The play did not run as smoothly as it might have done but a little unevenness was to be expected on the first presentation, when so many new persons had their places and evolutions to learn. It is probable all defects will be remedied by to-night.

The Centennial Tea Party.

The Centennial Tea Party commences to-morrow evening at Library Hall. The work of decorating commenced yesterday, and will be completed for the opening night. The entire parquette will be covered with flooring, at a height of three feet above the level of the stage, and will make a platform large enough for all the tables and sufficient to accommodate in addition all who may wish to be on it for gastronomical or other purposes. The Library and Art Gallery will also be thrown open to the patrons of the Tea Party.

Academy of Music.

Three representations of the new opera bouffe, "Girofle-Girofla," will be given at the Academy of Music during the latter part of this week, commencing on Friday night. That it met with eminent success in New York all amusement lovers are well aware, and it will be produced here with as much completeness as there.

Trimbles' Varieties.

The new stars were given a flattering welcome last night and at once ingratiated themselves in popular favor. Mr. and Mrs. George Ware and their combination constitute the chief attraction.

Musical and Dramatic Notes.

SALVENI, the tragedian, has been engaged by Mr. Mapleson, of the Drury Lane Opera-house, for a short season of Italian plays, prior to the commencement of the opera season.

WHY don't Davy Crockett use his rifle instead of his arm, to bar the door of his cabin against the howling wolves? He enters, rifle in hand, and after laying down the weapon, forgets all about it, notwithstanding it is in the corner all the time. If he would do this, he might make love to Eleanor for twenty-four hours, and employ his arm much better than in holding the door fast.

FROM European advices, we learn of the death of Mr. Benjamin Lumley, the well known Italian Opera Manager, on the 16th inst. He was born in 1812. He was educated for the legal profession. He became director of Her Majesty's Theatre in 1849. In 1847. Jenny Lind made her appearance under his management. The latter years of his operatic life were marked by the brilliant success of Piccolomini, Lietzena, Giuglini and others.

OLIVE LOGAN'S household possessions were sold at auction a day or two ago. The library was a very ordinary collection, and the curiosities were still less valuable. A set of satin-covered furniture brought the highest price—$169; a carved oak stagere, once owned by Victor Hugo, sold for $18, and the books went at an avarage of 27½ cents each. And these results were accomplished under the guidance of Favor, who happened to be the auctioneer.

CLARA MORRIS is going to play "Jane Shore" in San Francisco. This tragedy, although two hundred years old, is unfamiliar to the stage of to-day. It used to be invariably produced in London, on the nights of the holiday season, previous to the pantomime. One of its acts is stolen bodily from "Richard III," and it is altogether a gloomy affair, the hapless heroine dying from starvation, in the presence of the audience. There is a chance for a death scene more revolting than that enacted by Miss Morris in "The Sphinx."

The union is particularly a happy one, inasmuch as both groom and bride are thoroughly acquainted with journalism in all its departments, and, to use a quaint expression, are exceedingly well mated. They have our heartiest congratulations, and we are sure that the many readers who have perused Mr. Dumars' poetical and prose articles in our own columns will join in our best wishes for the welfare of the happy couple made one.

DON'T HACK, HACK, COUGH, COUGH!

Cough is a symptom by which various diseased conditions of the throat, bronchial tubes and lungs manifest themselves. But whether it arises from the irritation produced in the throat and larynx by taking cold, from an attack of Bronchitis, from incipient Consumption, or from various other causes, nothing will allay it more speedily or cure it more permanently than Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It does not matter whether it be a recent attack, or a lingering cough, it is in either case equally well adapted for its relief and permanent cure. In fact, it will cure a cough in one-half the time necessary to cure it with any other medicine, and it does it, not by drying it up, but by removing the cause, subduing the irritation, and healing the affected parts. No time should be lost in commencing the use of a proper medicine for the relief of a cough, for unless this course is pursued, serious and dangerous disease of the lungs is liable to result. Golden Medical Discovery is sold by all dealers in medicine.

ALLEGHENY TRUST COMPANY.

Meeting of Stockholders—Looking into the Finances—The Deficiency at Present $175,000—The Depositors to be Paid Regularly.

Yesterday afternoon, pursuant to public call, the stockholders of the Allegheny Trust Company held a meeting in the Select Council chamber, City Building. There was a full attendance of the stockholders, together with the experts who had gone over the books, and the Solicitor of the bank, Major A. M. Brown. The meeting was held with closed doors, commencing at four o'clock, and being in session until after six o'clock. The meeting was organized by calling Mr. Arthur Hobson to the chair and Mr. N. A. Burchfield to act as Secretary.

Mr. James McBrier, President of the Board of Directors, then submitted a full statement of the liabilities and assets of the bank, at the time when the bank closed its doors, which is about the same as published in the GAZETTE some time ago.

He also submitted a second statement showing that the receipts of the bank from the first fifty per cent. assessment levied on the stockholders, and also on bills receivable which have been paid since the closing of the bank, amounting to $134,000, and they have paid to depositors the sum of $104,000 since that time.

He also submitted a third statement, showing the indebtedness of the bank at the time of closing the doors, the amount paid since then, and also the estimated value of bills receivable and property owned by the bank, which deducted from the original indebtedness, still leaves a balance of about $175,000 to be raised by the stockholders. Also, a statement showing the "overdrafts" at the time the bank closed.

Considerable discussion then ensued in regard to the matter.

A list of the stockholders who had paid the first assessment, and also a list of those who had not paid, was submitted.

It was decided to place the names of all those who had not paid both the first and second assessments by the first of May, with the Solicitor to be proceeded against legally.

After considerable further discussion the meeting adjourned, but all favored continuing the present mode of liquidating the debt of the corporation and as speedily as possible.

THE largest and most powerful locomotive on the Pennsylvania Railroad is the "Modoc," which draws, with apparent ease one hundred empty cars from Columbia to Harrisburg—double the number averaged by the engines running between these points. Eastward it pulls from seventy to eighty loaded as easily as an ordinary locomotive ordinarily manages half the number. As the length of a car is thirty-three feet, the "Modoc's" train Westward is three thousand three hundred feet long, nearly two-thirds of a mile.

The Great Tribunal.

Public opinion is the great tribunal by which the value of all discoveries is judged. Its favorable verdict long ago stamped Hostetter's Stomach Bitters as the leading invigorant and alterative of the age, and the truthfulness of that decision is constantly receiving fresh corroboration in the shape of results the most complete and satisfactory, accomplished in our very midst. Tributes to its efficacy as a remedy for indigestion, constipation, nervous complaints, sleeplessness, general debility, rheumatism and kidney disorders pour in from every quarter; physicians emphatically commend it as a remedy for most inorganic maladies, and the press indorses the dictum of the profession. Thus the popularity of the reigning tonic stimulant of America is constantly widening, despite the invectives fulminated against spirituous preparations by the venders of mock temperance bitters, which the public some time since discovered to be fermented rubbish, and the sales of which are rapidly on the wane.
